Get Your New Model
Cheerful Chicago
Too Many Marines Shot
Beer, Perhaps

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

NEW YORK starts its annual show, and other great cities soon do so. See the new car, your model, don't be easily persuaded that you can't afford it.

Your model is an investment in pleasure for all the family, in knowledge and know your own country, and an investment that adds life by making time more valuable.

It's not how many hours you live, but how much you can do in them that decides life's value.

A Galapagos turtle lives 900 years. But he couldn't see in 9,000 years as much as a man with a car can see in a week.

Don't be a Galapagos turtle. Get a new model with the new year.

CHICAGO would like the rest of the world to know that it starts 1931 cheerfully. That spot, one hundred years ago an Indian trading post, now includes real estate that, according to The Chicago Herald and Examiner, exceeds the entire wealth of Switzerland, Chile and New Zealand and is greater than the wealth of all the Netherlands, by one billion dollars.

In 1931 Illinois will pay $800,000,000 wages to 500,000 factory workers and sell to the world $3,000,000,000 worth of the manufactured goods. It will spend $400,000,000 on new buildings.

If that Chicago does not see any good reason to weep.

REVOLUTION in Panama drives out the president and kills 11, including one American. Revolutions seem to be fashionable with our neighbors farther south. But that is their business, not ours. As long as they do not interefere with us, we should not interfere with them.

NEWS from Nicaragua is our business. Rebels there killed eight American marines, making 27 marines killed by Nicaraguans in the last four years.

That's why our marines were there, the government knows. The original purpose then was that they would stay and help police the country while the new Nicaraguan government became established. It seems to have taken a long time to become established.

Senator King of Utah wants our marines brought out immediately. He says we are "using bandits to back up the investments of our citizens."

No matter what we have been doing, something should be done now to persuade Nicaraguans reasonable that it is a mistake to ambush and shoot American marines that were not shooting anyone.

NEXT TUESDAY you may hear from the Wickersham committee that has been discussing beer and such things.

The President will be told, according to prediction, that the commission would not repeal prohibition, but would get around it. They would advise modifying the Volstead act by opening the way for "beer nonintoxicating in fact."

Perhaps the state will decide what kind of beer is "nonintoxicating in fact," in which case some states will have excellent beer.

OFFICIALS TO BEGIN TERMS HERE MONDAY

Five Newcomers To Take Over Duties in Courthouse; All Democrats.

M'CURDY ONLY REPUBLICAN

Commissioner Starts New Term; Two Others To Take Officer Later in Year.

Five new county officials will take over their duties Monday when the terms for their respective offices begin, while a sixth, Ora C. McCurdy, will begin serving a new four-year term as county commissioner.

Charles C. Fye, Democrat, will replace John J. Francis, Republican, as sheriff, as the result of his victory at the November election over D. A. Brobst, Republican nominee, and Russell M. Wilhelm, also a Democrat, will become prosecuting attorney. He succeeds Alfred Donithen, Republican, whom he defeated at the polls in November.

Starts Full Term

Charles A. Markert, Republican, will begin serving his full term as recorder. He has been serving a short term, to which he also was elected, since he legally qualified for the office in the middle of November. He succeeded Mrs. Cora McKeever, Republican, who was filling out an unexpired term.

Dr. Kenneth D. Smith, Democrat, who polled the highest vote in the

POOR GET SUGAR SEIZED IN RAID

The sins of one reputed bootlegger in Marion county will work to the benefit of the poor of the city, it was revealed today when probate court issued an order to Sheriff John J Francis to turn over 1,600 pounds of confiscated sugar to Charles M. Tobin, city relief commissioner, for distribution to the poor.

The sugar, which is contained in 100-pound sacks, was taken by Francis in one of his raids early last year and has been kept in county jail since that time.

Francis turned the sugar over to Tobin today as one of his last acts as sheriff. His term ends Monday when Charles C. Fye succeeds him as sheriff.

The court also ordered Francis to destroy several bottles of beer which were confiscated since the last time Francis staged a liquor pouring party in the alley next to the jail on Nov. 1.

SECRETARY QUITS

George Akerson Resigns as Aide to Hoover.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3—George Akerson will leave his post as secretary to President Hoover to enter private business, probably about the middle of January.

His resignation and its acceptance was announced late yesterday with an expression of regret by President Hoover. A successor has not yet been chosen.

Akerson has had charge of the President's public relations, the other two secretaries, Walter Newton and Lawrence Richey having specialized deputies.

The President referred to him as "an old friend" and gave as the reason for departure duty to his family, in view of an offered post with the Paramount Publix corporation at two or three times the salary he receives at the White House.

Prosecutor Gets Introduction To Thieves Early

COUNTY PROSECUTOR RUSSELL M. WILHELM got an early start in his dealings with criminals this year when his Chevrolet coupe was stolen from near his residence while he was at dinner last night.

The car was recovered this morning near the Coca Cola Bottling Works by city police. Although Wilhelm's term of office officially began yesterday, he had not yet taken the oath of office when the theft occurred.

It is the second time thieves have showed a preference for newly-elected officials' automobiles. When John Wiedemann became city prosecutor early in 1930, one of his first duties was to recover his Ford coupe which was stolen from him shortly after he began his term of office.

Robert Sultzbach of Prospect, above, will represent Marion county in the district Prince of Peace declamation contest to be held at Upper Sandusky Sunday at 2 p. m. in the Methodist Episcopal church. He won the county honors and a silver medal in a recent county-wide contest held at Green Camp. Eight contestants competed for the honor.

He is the son of Rev. and Mrs. Charles W. Sutzbach of Prospect. Rev. Sultzbach is pastor of the Prospect M. E. church.

TAKES UP RAIL MERGER TODAY

U. S. Commission Meets After Road Heads Fix Final Plans.

DETAILS DEFINITELY SET

Erie and Hocking Valley Are in Group Assigned to C. & O.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3—A special meeting of the interstate commerce commission was called for today to discuss the consolidation plans of eastern railroad heads.

It was said at commission headquarters that a public statement be made today, and that this was one thing to be decided at the session.

Although formal application for consolidations, as agreed upon yesterday by executives of the Baltimore & Ohio, the Pennsylvania, the Nickel Plate and the New York Central railroads have not been filed the commission has received a letter explaining the plans

FINAL PLANS FIXED

Hocking Valley and Erie Assigned to C. & O.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Jan. 3—The text of an agreement proposing the consolidation of all railroads in the east, excluding New England, into four trunk systems was before the state commerce commission today.

Final details of the plan were adopted yesterday at a conference of the heads of the New York Central, the Pennsylvania, the Baltime & Ohio and the Chesapeake & Ohio, about which the smaller lines would be clustered.

Although the features of the proposal already have been announced, the complete draft revealed several unexpected provisions. These were the allocation of the Ann Arbor to the B. & O. and the Bessemer & Lake Erie and the Chicago & Eastern Illinois to the C. & O.

The New York Central would acquire the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western and a direct connection with the Virginian railway at Deepwater, including joint rates and routes over the road.

The Pennsylvania would acquire the Wabash, the Detroit, Toledo & Ironton and the Norfolk & Western.

The Chesapeake & Ohio would acquire the Hocking Valley, the Erie, the Bessemer & Lake Erie, the Pere Marquette, the Wheeling & Lake Erie, the Chicago and Eastern Illinois, and the Lehigh Valley with certain rights reserved to the Pennsylvania on the Lehigh Valley.

In its report to the commission, the conference pointed out that the plan called for four systems instead of the five outlined by that body, but that the agreement is "interdependent and would not have been reached upon any different basis of allocation."

GUNBOAT IS TARGET

By The Associated Press

MEN TRAPPED IN OHIO MINE; 1 FOUND DEAD

None Likely To Be Rescued, Is Report from Scene Near New Philadelphia.

VENTILATION SHUT OFF

Blocking of Air Shaft by Explosion Creates Probability of Suffocation.

By Brush-Moore Leased Wire

NEW PHILADELPHIA, O., Jan. 3—One miner was killed, four were trapped and 15 others escaped when an explosion rocked the shaft of the Midvale Coal company's mine No. 4 three miles west of here today.

The body of Clyde Ohler was brought to the surface by rescue crews shortly before noon.

Hope for the other four remaining in the debris-littered workings was abandoned when Ohler's body was brought out.

The four men who still remained in the mine were Charles Carnahan, Sam Boggiani, Mark Rennicker and Ludi Nemitt, all residents of Midvale and Barnhill.

Air Shaft Blocked

The air-shaft three miles from the mouth of the mine was blocked, rescue crews reported. This led to the belief that the other four trapped men would not be found alive.

Meanwhile relief workers from two states rushed to the scene of the tragedy. All available ambulances in New Philadelphia, Uhrichsville and Denison sped to the mine.

Two engineers from the United States bureau of mines at Pittsburgh boarded an airplane shortly before noon and raced toward the scene. A mine rescue crew from Cambridge, O., also was summoned.

The mine was owned by Robert Rutledge of Midvale.

Inspectors Summoned

Andrew Muller of Adena, Lott Jenkins of Martins Ferry, and Dick McGee of Shadyside, mine inspectors for Eastern Ohio, left for the scene of the blast shortly before noon today. They are experienced in mine rescue work.

The mine had been operating at full capacity, but the explosion occurred before a full crew had descended for the day.

Rescuers at the mine said they did not believe there was any fire in the shaft, but that they were not certain. Apparently, suffocation was the chief fear for the trapped men.

Bank At Morral Is Burglarized; 50 Pennies Loot

Special To The Star

MORRAL, O., Jan. 3—The Morral Banking Co. last night was burglarized of 50 cents in pennies.

The burglar entered the building after smashing a pane of glass in a small side window. No effort was made to open the safe, bank officials said this morning. A large automobile wrench was discovered in the building.

The pennies had been left in the cash drawer when the bank closed for business yesterday. The burglary was believed to be the work of local talent.

COLLECTION OF TAXES TO BEGIN ON MONDAY

Treasurer Ready with Bills for Semi-Annual Payments to County.

Tax collections in Marion county will begin in earnest Monday at the office of County Treasurer Bert J. Shelton, following a postponement of several weeks.

The postponement was due primarily to the tax levies voted upon at the pools in November, which held up the figuring of tax rates in the auditor's office. Work on making bills in the treasurer's office consequently was held up until the rates were made and approved by the state.

Taxes have been collected in the past few weeks when taxpayers presented their money at the treasurer's office, but the general collection will not start until Monday, according to Shelton.

Commissioners recenty granted a 30-day extension until Jan. 20, for the payment of taxes.

NOTED WARRIOR LOSES LAST BATTLE

MARSHAL JOSEPH JOFFRE

DEATH COMES AS CLIMAX OF LONG ILLNESS

Career of "Hero of Marne" Closes Peacefully Early Today.

FRANCE IN MOURNING

Prepare Notable Funeral Tribute to Last of Nation's Chief War Leaders.

By The Associated Press

PARIS, Jan. 3—Death came today to Marshal Joffre, last of the chief French military leaders of the Great War, after a fortnight's illness in which it was necessary to amputate his left leg. The marshal would have been 79 years old tomorrow.

The end was peaceful. Three members of his family, Mme. Joffre, his son-in-law, M. Lafile and his brother, Ferdinand, General Issaly, his chief of staff, Colonel Desmazes of his staff, his doctors and a few others were present. He died without coming out from the coma which closed over him at noon Thursday, his life gradually ebbing since.

Announced at Early Hour

The announcement was made at 8:30 a. m. A member of his military household, Captain Saint Cornin, pale with emotion, emerged from the hospital and in a husky voice telling newspapermen: "The marshal is dead, gentlemen." He displayed a bulletin signed by the marshal's physicians, which set the end at 8:23 a. m.

Shortly afterward Professor Lorichs, Strassbourg specialist who came to Paris to treat the ailment which finally cut the marshal's life short, appeared and informing the newspapermen of the circumstances of death, added that the marshal had been in a state of coma virtually all this week except for rare intervals of five or ten minutes lucidity.

Despite the early hour a crowd already had assembled outside the

HOOVER, PERSHING SEND MESSAGES

By International News Service

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3 — The death of Marshal Joffre, while expected, caused genuine regret in Washington today, for the old soldier always had been held in warm personal esteem by officials here since his memorable visit in the spring of 1917.

President Hoover promptly cabled President Domergue his own and the country's regrets at the marshal's passing.

Gen. John J. Pershing also sent a message of condolence to the French minister of war.

Plan Funeral Equal to Tribute Accorded Foch

By The Associated Press

PARIS, Jan. 3—Marshal Joffre will be buried in a national funeral as elaborate as that tendered his illustrious colleague Marshal Foch, but his body will not lie in state under the Arc de Triomphe, for the marshal himself had said he did not wish to be the cause of his troops and the people of Paris risking their health in the Paris winter to do him honor.

The cabinet arranged the funeral services at a special session this morning and it was disclosed that while he was still alive the marshal had expressed a desire to be buried at Louveciennes, his country home.

The home, designed by Mme. Joffre herself and known as Chestnut Grove, stands in a lonely wooded country near Versailles. In its garden Marshal Joffre played with his dogs, Dick and Pieto, and grew roses.

MAN, WOMAN FLIERS TAKE OFF FOR PARIS

Lieut. MacLaren and Beryl Hart Share Pilot's Task in Trip Over Sea.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Jan. 3—Carrying a pay load, Mrs. Beryl Hart and Lieutenant William S. MacLaren hopped off at 5:50 a. m. (Marion time) today on the first lap of a projected trans-Atlantic flight to Paris, via Bermuda and the Azores.

The Bellanca monoplane Tradewind, with Lieutenant MacLaren at the controls, soared away from the Glenn H. Curtiss seaport at North Beach, Queens, circled the port once and headed out toward the tip of Long Island. It was followed a few minutes later by an escort plane, occupied by W. D Campbell, E. M. Smith and C. J. Strickland, which will accompany the fliers several hundred miles.

First Stop at Bermuda

The fliers, traveling on an express schedule, hope to land at Hamilton, Bermuda, at 1:30 p. m and tarry three hours. Just before sunset they plan to resume the trip to Horta, Azores, arriving in 21 hours. They plan to make the last lap in 17½ hours and come down on the River Seine within the French capital. The "Tradewind" is equipped with pontoons.

With a desire to prove that ocean flying can be put on a paying commercial basis, the pilots landed the "Tradewind" with about 250 pounds of mail and foodstuffs, the first cargo load to be started across the Atlantic. The mail was cleared out of New York and was destined for stamp collectors along the way.

Weather bureau officials predicted favorable weather for them on the first lap, with a 15-mile-an hour tailwind to speed them along. Ordinarily, weather over the Atlantic is not ideal for flying at this time of year.

POSTAL INCOME HIGH FOR YEAR

Marion Receipts for 1930 Second Highest in History of Office, Crow Says.

Postoffice receipts in Marion during 1930 showed a healthy increase over receipts of the preceding year, and reached the second high mark in the history of the local office, records of Postmaster French Crow reveal.

Total receipts of $172,733.08 for the year are 1.87 per cent more than 1929 receipts of $169,603.05, postoffice officials say. Since postoffice receipts are generally recognized as a barometer of business conditions, the increase of $3,130.03 over 1929 would indicate Marion business last year exceeded the 1929 volume by a comfortable margin.

Receipts last year, augmented by the sale of nearly $2,000 in new Harding stamps, rank second only to the income of the postoffice in 1928 when $180,639.94 was received. During that year, an unusually large shipment of mail order house catalogues, several carloads of them, were sent out from the local office. As a result of this, August receipts in that year reached nearly $20,000, an unusually high figure for a summer month.

Standing third in the list of prosperous years is 1924 with receipts for that period amounting to $172,475.84.

Receipts for December this year amounted to $20,001.03, an increase of $735.01 over receipts of $19,266.02 reported during December, 1929.

HUNT OUTLAWS

Marines Beat Jungles in Search for Attackers of Patrol.

NANAGUA, Nicaragua, Jan. 3—Marines continued today to beat through the jungle of northern Nicaragua in search of the 200 odd outlaws who attacked a patrol of United States marines Wednesday, killing eight of its members and wounding two.

Apparently, however, the attackers who ambushed the soldiers fled into the wilderness, where capture will be difficult.

Reinforcements have been sent to Achuapa, vicinity of the ambush, on reports that a large force of outlaws is active in that sector.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3— Bodies of the eight marines killed in Nicaragua Wednesday will arrive in this country Friday, Jan. 30.

ASK TRUSTEES TO SEND VIEWS

Donithen Wants Expression of Opinion on Memorial Dedication Plans.

BOARD TO MEET MONDAY

Session Requested by President Frelinghuysen, Head of Harding Association.

Trustees of the Harding Memorial association who live at points distant from Marion and who are likely not to attend a meeting called here Monday noon by Hoke Donithen, secretary, for the purpose of considering a formal invitation to President Hoover to dedicate the memorial, have been asked by the secretary to send letters expressing their views if they are unable to be present.

Six Live Here

Donithen said an expression by letter was asked because a number of the trustees live so far from Marion that they would be unlikely to attend. Only six of the 22 trustees live in Marion.

The meeting Monday was called by Donithen on request of former United States Senator Joseph S. Frelinghuysen of New Jersey, president of the association. Frelinghuysen, now on a hunting trip in the south, will not attend.

The trustees, "in all probability," will vote to invite the President to set a date and give the dedicatory address, Donithen said.

Members of Board

Local members of the board of trustees are Frank A. Huber, John A. Schroeder, C. B. King, Dr. Carl W. Sawyer, James F. Prendergast and Hoke Donithen. Other members are former President Calvin Coolidge, former Vice President Charles G. Dawes, Andrew W. Mellon, Harry S. New, Hubert Work, President Herbert Hoover, James J. Davis, Joseph S. Frelinghuysen, Charles E. Hughes, Harry M. Daugherty, D. R. Crissinger, Edwin B. McLean, John Barton Payne, John Hays Hammond, George B. Christian Jr., and E. P. Mellon.

Mr. Prendergast is expected to preside in the absence of Mr. Frelinghuysen.

PANAMA AWAITING ARRIVAL OF ALFARO

New President-Delegate To Leave Post as Minister at Washington.

By The Associated Press

PANAMA CITY, Jan. 3—Panama, its government overturned in a brief revolution which brought death to 10 persons today awaited the return of its new president designate Dr. Don Ricardo J. Alfaro minister at Washington. Dr. Alfaro cabled from Washington his acceptance of the post.

Meanwhile a provisional government headed by Dr. Harmodio Arias, a leader of the isthmian republic's young bloods, acted to restore order throughout the country, arresting the leading figures of the old regime and seeking to allay public fears of further violence.

Florencio Harmodio Arosemena, who yesterday resigned the presidency he had held since 1928, was confined to his quarters with other government officials, including Archibaldo Boyd, Governor of the province of Panama. It was believed that he will be released shortly unless it is decided to hold him for trial on charges of malfeasance.

One of the most seriously wounded was an American, Hartwell F. Ayers, newspaper man of Anniston, Ala., who was shot in the neck and abdomen, near the presidential palace, and lay behind its walls for an hour before being discovered.

In the confusion which attended the revolt there was an erroneous report that Ayers had died in the hospital despite an emergency operation. Subsequently it developed that he had survived and that there was a slim chance of his recovery.

The capital was quiet today. Stores were open and transportation facilities restored to normal service. Members of the revolutionary party still patrolled the city wearing purple arm bands.

"Red Victory"

(Will Rogers Special)

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Jan. 3—The Alabama bo-weevils destroyed the Washington apple knockers at Pasadena Thursday. Washington had all red suits, shoes, pants, helmets and all. They looked like 11 bottles of strawberry pop.

The score sounded like the Democratic convention at Madison Square Garden in '24. "Alabama votes 24 for Underwood." Thursday "Alabama makes 24 for Coach Wallace Wade."

Here is the best one that happened at the rose festival Thursday: A policeman arrested some little boys for plucking roses from the yard at the house Einstein, the great scientist, is stopping at! The kids then showed the policeman that the roses were not growing, they were tied on all sorts of bushes with strings.

That's one of California's theories that Einstein doesn't understand.

TAX RECEIPTS DECREASE

By United Press

WASHINGTON, Jan. 3—Income tax receipts in the calendar year 1930 aggregated $2,388,207,000 a decrease of about $70,000,000 as compared with tax receipts in the calendar year 1929, it was revealed today by final treasury figures for the year.

HARDING LOSES POORLY PLAYED GAME

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK

THE SEARCH is still on; Referring to the search for a scoring combination worthy of the name, one that will get Harding at least a fair share of points during the Enseco basketball season. Last night's game with Mansfield demonstrated clearly that as yet the Presidents have nothing that will cause any fear on the part of opposing teams. The locals are extremely fortunate in having met Mansfield in the opening game. The Tygers looked as bad and at times even worse than the Bohyer coached aggregation.

Next week a vast improvement will have to be shown or else it is quite probable that Ashland will administer a severe drubbing to the Church street quintet. The Presidents will journey to the foreign court for the clash with Ashland.

Other games scheduled for next Friday call for Harding at Ashland, Galion at Mansfield, and Bucyrus at Shelby. And unless the dope is upset it will be a beating for Harding, Bucyrus and Mansfield with Shelby, Ashland, and Galion emerging the winners.

• • •

Here is one of the biggest reasons why Harding took a beating in the first game of the season. Inaccuracy in shooting! Harding tossed the ball at the net a total of 35 times and hit it twice. In free throws the average was only slightly better, the Presidents making six of 17 charity tosses. Perhaps they don't want charity.

Mansfield's efforts in this direction were also far from impressive. The Tygers missed 23 out of 28 attempted field goals and made three out of seven charity tosses.

Mansfield committed a total of 14 personal fouls and Harding had half as many charged against its players.

• • •

It was bad enough to see Harding beaten by such an inferior basketball organization as Mansfield but even this beating did not hurt the local institution as much as the unwarranted jibes hurled at McKinney and one or two other Mansfield players as they left the floor at various times during the game, either through orders of their coach or as the result of personal fouls.

Harding partisans would do well to learn to give the opposing players the credit due them as well as sheer the Harding players. The display of sportsmanship put on by the crowd last night was nothing to be proud of. It's not pleasant to lose a game to an arch-rival but even this does not give reason for spasmodic outbursts of taunts and jeers against opposing team members such as took place last night.

Some idea of the comparative strength of the 1929-30 St. Mary's basketball combination and the 1930-31 outfit of the same school will be gained tonight as the Alumni team clashes with the current edition of Irish basketeers. A number of players of the highly successful organization of last season will don the shorts tonight to clash with the High school five.

In glancing over the lineups it looks like the graduate team will have all the better of the argument. Perhaps the lack of practice on the part of the Alumni will allow the undergraduate quintet to come through with a win.

Some of the performers of the Alumni team are expected to be Chuck Fye, '30, H. Tobin, '29, Verner Gorsuch, '30, "Bugs" Moran, '30, Ray Navin, '25, Cliff Hogan, '28, Gene Gunder, '28, H. John McNamara, '26 and Bob Kelly, '30.

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 3—Bent upon recapturing the crown he lost to Gene Sarazen four years ago, Willie Klein, Wheatley Hills, N. Y., was in a three-way tie for the lead today at the start of the second 18-holes of the 72-hole Miami open golf championship.

Sarazen, who took first honors in 1928, 1929 and 1930 after toppling Klein, is not defending the title this year.

Wittenmerg Meets 'Bama in Fifth Game of Year

By United Press

SPRINGFIELD, O., Jan. 3—Wittenberg's basketball team will try for its fifth victory of the season here tonight, meeting the University of Alabama cagers in an intersectional game.

The Alabama team has been making a holiday tour of the northern states. The southerners have a strong, speedy quintet.

Wittenberg has victories over Bluffton, Ashland, Lehigh and Brigham Young. The Lutherans ran up large scores in all of their games.

ASHLAND FIVE UPSETS BUCYRUS; SHELBY DROPS FIRST TO GALION

Hilltoppers Flash Unexpected Ability To Hand Redmen 30-16 Beating.

FIVE basketball players parading under the banner of Ashland High school administered one vigorous boot to the proverbial dope bucket last night and sent the Bucyrus Redmen home smarting under the lash of a 30 to 16 beating. The defeat of Bucyrus was the biggest upset of the opening round games in the league. Bucyrus has shown better form than the Hilltoppers in pre-season competition and had been expected to come through with an opening night victory.

Await for Openings

Neither team presented any high powered scoring arrangement during the play of the opening period, both being content to test each other's strength and await a favorable opening. Bucyrus came through the first frame with a single point lead, the count standing 5-4 for the Redmen.

Ashland turned loose an assault on the net in the second period that simply overwhelmed the visitors and left little doubt as to the superior team. The Redmen managed to keep the count within striking distance but Ashland widened the gap as the game progressed.

Combining a smooth offense with a perfectly functioning defense in the third quarter the Starmen stopped the Bucyrus invaders cold, counting five points for themselves while the Redmen could not tally a single point. Bucyrus got but two shots at the Ashland goal in the entire third period, and failed in both of them.

Offense Opens Up

The Ashland basketeers broke through the Bucyrus defenses in the final period of play almost at will, putting on a scoring rampage that netted the team 12 points and run the total count for the game to 30 points. Bucyrus made a determined effort to catch the Hilltoppers, collecting seven markers, but Ashland's superior defenses smothered them before the threat reached serious proportions.

Talbott and LaPointe held the spotlight for the losers in the game while Thomas and McMillen were the big noise for the Ashland five.

The lineups and summary:

Presidents Edged by Mansfield 13-10; Neither Team Looks Good.

HARDING High school's Presidents opened the N. C. O. basketball season with Mansfield on the Marion court with a good exhibition of how basketball should not be played, the locals coming out on the short end of a 13 to 10 count. Play was ragged throughout the entire game, neither outfit presenting anything like a high class offense or defense.

Just why these two teams are being picked to finish the league season at the bottom of the list is not difficut to understand after seeing the game last night. Mansfield opened up in the opening of the first period with an offensive attack that threatened to make a worthwhile spectacle but before the quarter was far advanced it became evident that the game would resolve into a basketball nightmare.

Mansfield tallied a trio of points to start the game before Harding could connect for any. Jack Ling, elongated pivot man for the Presidents, dropped in a charity throw after Morgan had failed in a free throw attempt and scored the first point for Harding.

Smith Gets 2 Goals

Inwood Smith, Mansfield forward sifted through the President's defenses twice in quick succession following the Ling one-pointer and collected a pair of goals to give the invaders a comfortable lead and complete the scoring in the opening period.

Dick Morgan came through in the second period with one of Harding's two field goals and brought the local's scoring total to three for the first half. Mansfield did no better in the second frame, scoring one field goal to bring the count to 9-3 at the half.

The list the play in the final two periods under the classification of a football game would be more accurate than describing it as a basketball encounter. Fouls were numerous although the officials were rather lenient in calling them. McKinney and McMullen both went to the showers with four personals charged against them

Harding Attempts Rally

With the score standing 11-6 at the start of the final period Harding attempted to put on a final period rally and snatch victory from defeat but failed by a slight margin

Jack Ling, Harding center took the tip-off from the Mansfield pivot man on every jump but even with this advantage the Presidents were unable to offer any scoring threat. Time after time the ball would be worked down to within scoring distance only to see it lost to the Tygers as a result of a lack of wide awake basketball on the part of the Presidents.

Orangemen Look Strong as Whippets Fall Before Last Period Attack.

LAST season Shelby was the victor in the race for the league basketball pennant. This year is has been generally picked as a favorite to repeat the 1929-30 championshop stunt. It is quite possible this may happen but from information gained in the Galion-Shelby game last night it looks like the McClintock coached team would provide a serious obstacle to the Shelby title march. Shelby was the victim of the Galion sharpshooters on the Galion court, losing 32 to 26 in a hard fought and closely contested battle.

The Whippets trailed Galion during the larger part of the contest although the Orangemen were hard pressed at all stages to retain anything like a comfortable lead. Shelby kept the count within a few points of a tie score for the first three periods but slackened the pace in the final frame and thereby saw the possibilities for an opening victory go glimmering into space.

15-13 at Half

Two points separated the battling contestants at the ends of both the first and second quarters. The score at the first period stood 8-6 for Galion and at the half 15-13 for the same team. Galion added a single point advantage in the third period leading 23-20.

The Whippets could not continue the gruelling pace set by the winning combination in the final period of play, allowing the Orangemen to widen the scoring gap and run up a commanding advantage.

General Play Good

Both teams cleverly demonstrated the reasons why they are figured to be so much in the title race this season. The floorwork of both was far classier variety than witnessed in the other two league frays. Culbertson, as usual stood head and shoulders above his Shelby teammates. His accurate shooting eye netted a half dozen field goals and half as many free throws for a total of 15 points. He was the high scorer for the three league clashes. Hoekstra and Davis turned in a good evening's work for the winners. Mellon was sent to the bench in the second period with four personals against him.

The lineups and summary:

Shelby	G	F	Galion	G	F

Peoria Ball Club To Have New Manager

CINCINNATI, O., Jan. 3—William Rourke, chief scout for the Cincinnati Reds baseball team, will leave here Sunday for Peoria, Ill., where he will confer with Jack Ryan, head of the Peoria club, on the subject of selecting a new manager for the outfit, it was announced today by Sidney Weil, president of the Reds.

The Peoria club, of the Three-Eye league, is a Cincinnati farm. Weil said he preferred a catcher-manager for the position. Gus Felix, former outfielders of the Brooklyn Nationals, is one of the dozen applicants for the job.

Northwestern To Play Notre Dame Five Tonight

EVANSTON, Ill., Jan. 3—Northwestern, a favorite for Big Ten conference basketball honors, will close its pre-conference schedule tonight in a game with Notre Dame. The game is the second between the two squads. Northwestern having won the first at South Bend three weeks ago.

The Wildcats have won their previous games easily and need only a victory over Notre Dame for a record of five straight before they open their Big Ten schedule with Michigan Jan. 10.

GOB'S MANAGER IN VERBAL ASSAULT ON GERMAN, STRIBLING

Buckley Also Looses Attack on Madison Square Garden Officials.

BY LES CONKLIN
International News Service Sports Writer.

NEW YORK, Jan. 3—Johnny Buckley manager of Jack Sharkey, jumped headlong into the heavyweight title controversy today with the charge that a move was afoot to sidetrack the Boston sailor as an opponent for Max Schmeling.

Scenting dirty work at the crossroads, Buckley declared in a broadside against Schmeling, Joe Jacobs, his manager, and W. L. (Young) Stribling, that the object of the scheme is to handpick Stribling as Max's challenger.

"There has been a scheme dating back to last September to bring about the elimination of Sharkey so that Max Schmeling might meet Young Stribling, his handpicked opponent, in a June bout," asserted Buckley. "Madison Square garden corporation has a contract with Schmeling which requires mutual consent to name his opponent. The German, who still remembers the decisive licking he received from Sharkey in their bout last June, will consent to meet only Stribling."

Buckley then let loose a barrage against Stribling.

"Sharkey agreed to box Stribling in New York last month without compensation so that he could help the unemployed," he declared, "Stribling was offered $50,000 and turned this offer down. He also refused to meet Sharkey at Miami, claiming the match would not draw in the south owing to business conditions."

Buckley then took a few shots at Schmeling and proposed a bout in New York between Max and Sharkey for the benefit of the unemployed.

"Schmeling will not experience the least bit of trouble in beating Stribling," he continued. "Schmeling who was licked every second of his four-round bout with Sharkey and was awarded the decision while on the floor, now runs to cover much like Stribling did when the name of Sharkey was mentioned.

"Sharkey is ready to sign at once to meet Schmeling. He is further willing to enter into an agreement with Schmeling and Madison Square garden under the terms of which a percentage of the gross receipts will be turned over for the benefit of the unemployed in New York City. Schmeling has received $400,000 in purses in American rings and is duty bound to do something in a substantial way for the unemployed of this country."

William F. Carey, president of the garden, today disclaimed any knowlege of a "plot" against Sharkey. He pointed out that his organization had a contract with the Boston gob and was only too anxious to put on a Sharkey-Schmeling or a Sharkey-Stribling bout.

INDOOR SEASON TO OPEN IN NEW YORK

K. of C. Track and Field Meet Set for Tonight; Others Follow.

BY HENRY McLEMORE
United Press Staff Correspondent

NEW YORK, Jan. 3 — Those sports followers who relish the smell of horse liniment and the sight of earnest young men clad in flimsy drawers and an undershirt scapering round a hardwood bowl are likely to be on hand tonight at the fifth annual K. of C. track and field games.

The games are the first of the indoor season—a season which will soon be under full steam with every body but Aunt Mame and the children running the hundred, the 440, the 880 and so on up to the 2-mile.

New York, as usual, will get more than its share of the big meets, with both the National A. A. U. championship and the Intercollegiate A. A. A. A. (whatever that is) scheduled for running here.

The meet tonight will be run on the flat, eight-laps to a mile track, and has attracted an unusual number of high-class men for a meet so early in the season. The high-class men, however, are not expected to topple any records, for January stamina, or wind, as the boys say, is something else again from the late February variety.

The Columbia 500, the Mayor Walker half-mile, the great American sprint series at 60, 80 and 100 meters, and the interscholastic mile relay race are expected to prove the features of the meet.

SECOND TOURNAMENT OF WINTER SEASON STARTS PLAY TODAY

Santa Monica Event Opens with Prize Stake Providing $1,500.

By The Associated Press

SANTA MONICA, Calif., Jan. 3—Southern California's second winter golf tournament gets under way here today with the Santa Monica 18-hole amateur-pro best hole championship providing $1,500 prize money.

The tournament attracted more than 250 entries with half the field teeing off today and the remainder tomorrow. The play will call into action most of the country's leading professionals and several prominent amateurs who will get their third chance in tournament play at the "balloon" ball.

Of the leading teams scheduled to start today are Tommy Armour, P. G. A. champion from Detroit, and Everett Seaver, father of Charles Seaver, semi-finalist, in the National Amateur tournament last fall; Walter Hagen, Detroit, and Roland McKenzie, Washington, D. C., amateur; George Von Elm, Los Angeles pro and Howard Hughes, also of Los Angeles; Harry Cooper, Chicago pro, and Johnny Dawson, Chicago's outstanding amateur.

Today in Marion Markets

Groceries, Produce, Meat, Grain, Livestock

Tomato prices went sky-high this morning when grocers offered hothouse varieties following the disappearance of California grown tomatoes. Hothouse tomatoes are commanding prices of 35 cents a pound as compared with quotations of 20 cents a pound on the California varieties, which are no longer available.

Butter and egg prices continued unsettled today. Wholesalers are charging a variety of prices for butter, and retailers in turn are unable to agree on a standard price. Eggs were slightly lower today, selling 32 to 36 cents a dozen.

New cauliflower is slightly higher, with large heads selling as high as 45 cents.

MARKETS HERE SHOW FEW PRICE CHANGES

Only Influence of Holiday Is Shown in Increased Selling.

Marion retail markets continued comparatively inactive, so far as price changes were concerned, during the week, a review of the six day period shows. The holiday influence was not noticeable except for an increased volume of business, according to grocers.

Market prices generally maintained normal levels through the holiday season. Butter, forced to low levels by an oversupply, continued low, as did eggs under the same influence.

Exceptionally good varieties of head lettuce and citrus fruits were offered this week. The iceberg head lettuce is equal to that locally grown in the middle of its season and sells at 10 to 15 cents a head slightly more than the native grown lettuce commands in the fall.

Oranges, grapefruit and tangerines are coming in plentifully, and are at the heart of their season. Prices are as low as they are likely to be, and the supply and quality is much better than they have been for months.

Although a variety of sweet potatoes was offered in the Indiana-grown Jerseys at three pounds for 25 cents, and in the Jersey-grown Nancy Halls, at slightly higher prices, the supply is rather low at present. Grocers are finding it increasingly difficult to purchase quantities of large, select potatoes, market observers state.

EARLY GAINS BOOST WHEAT

Wavering Start Offset by Rally; Price Highest Since Dec. 20.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Jan. 3—Grain advanced early today after a wavering start. With offerings scarce, wheat reached the highest point since Dec. 20. Winnipeg dispatches said the Canadian government was working to export 100,000,000 bushels of wheat to the Orient. Starting at ¾ cents decline to a shade advance, Chicago wheat scored all around gains later. Corn opened ⅝ cent off to ⅛ cents up, and then rose more than 1 cent but afterward reacted.

Predictions of smaller world shipments tended to strengthen wheat, and so likewise did an official forecast of general fair weather next week over domestic winter crop territory, where moisture dearth has been complained of. Indications of export business in Canada were a further encouragement to buyers, together with word of adverse harvest conditions in Argentina. Rising prices for corn acted as an additional stimulus.

Big shrinkage of corn receipts attracted much attention. Primary corn arrivals were but 507,000 bushels against 1,610,000 a year ago. Chicago had only 41 cars, compared with 189 at this time in 1930, and Omaha, St. Louis and Kansas City receipts were also meager. Omaha advices said 40 stations called had been able to furnish only two cars. Oats sympathized with corn.

Provisions held about steady.

"REDUCING" BOOKED AT PALACE FOR WEEK STARTING SUNDAY

Dressler-Moran Comedy Team To Play Four Days.

BY HALLIE HOUCK

SO well does the Palace theater management think the public will like the Dressler-Moran comedy, "Reducing" starting there Sunday for four days, that it has reserved the picture for the week, if the boxoffice returns warrant it. That's a recommendation in itself for a picture, besides having two such comedy hits as Marie Dressler and Polly Moran as its stars.

Blond Anita Page who was with them in "Caught Short," their comedy on Wall Street, is with them again in "Reducing." Among the other featured players are Buster Collier Jr., Lucien Littlefield, Sally Eilers and William Bakewell.

If you were a little boy or girl, how would you like to be paid $7.50 a day to stay out of school and do nothing but throw eggs and tomatoes at a running man? That's what happened to a group of 50 Los Angeles children during the making of this picture.

A Los Angeles newspaper carried the following ad before "Reducing" went into production: "Wanted, 25 fat girls, all over 250 pounds." And 212 persons applied! The poundage girls were needed for scenes in which Miss Dressler runs a class through a course of violent exercises as part of a beauty parlor reducing routine.

DOROTHY MACKAIL IN "BRIGHT LIGHTS"

Dorothy Mackail, Frank Fay and Noah Beery are featured in "Bright Lights," the story of a star entertainer of Africa's lowest cafe, coming to the Ohio Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

MARIE DRESSLER

DOROTHY MACKAILL

The picture is all technicolor and Larry Ceballos who staged dances for the Greenwich Village Follies and other musical shows on Broadway, directed the dances.

Frank Fay, who is a master of ceremonies in the picture, was himself a famous master of ceremonies before turning to the screen. Kewpie Love, a favorite in San Francisco variety theaters 15 years ago, heads the fat women's chorus in "Bright Lights." She heads a group of chorines, none of whom weigh under 175 pounds and who are representative of the early days when "beef trust" chorines were demanded by the public.

TRANSFERS, LOANS INCREASE IN WEEK

Real Estate Exchanges Up from 15 to 16; Value of Loans $69,811.

Real estate transfers and mortgages increased slightly in number in Marion county during last week, the former jumping from 15, the previous week's mark, to 16, and mortgages increasing from five to nine, according to records at the courthouse.

Although the mortgages only doubled in number, the amount for which they were made out was 11 times that of the previous week. The nine mortgages totaled $69,811 as compared to $6,200 for the five recorded the week before.

None of the mortgages during the last week was on county property, all of it being on property in Marion. One mortgage amounted to $31,800, which was responsible for the high total of $69,811, which was the highest for one week since the week ending Sept. 19, 1930.

Loan associations assumed only $3,050 of last week's total.

Transfers were as follows:

The Stars Say---

For Sunday, Jan. 4

SUNDAY'S horoscope is a most interesting one with many of the planetary configurations denoting lively and progressive conditions in many directions. Mystical spiritual, and ecclesiastical matters are stressed, with prosperity and advancement promised. But there are important upheavals and changes imminent, accompanied by tempofary setbacks or postponements. Be careful with papers and law.

Those whose birthday it is are at the crossroads of a most important time of life, with large matters at stake. Change, radical decisions, ambition and advancement loom on the immediate horizon, accompanied by stern oppositions and probable disappointments as well as personal annoyances. But it is a year of large opportunity and possibilities for achievement prestige. A child born on this day should have a splendid assortment of talents and faculties fitting it for a prominent place in life.

• • •

For Monday, Jan. 5

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is quite a contradictory one, with good promise of favorable circumstance and opportunities, but these must be improved by wise judgment, clever methods and patient application and resistance to stubborn obstacle and frustration. However, personal adaptability and popularity may assist over these obstructions and private pleasures and social activity offset the passing adversities.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year of some opposition and conflicting conditions, with progress and prosperous issues dependent upon determination to overcome obstacles with fortitude and earnest effort, these assisted by cleverness and good judgment Personal affiliations and popularity may prove compensatory as social, domestic and romantic affairs will be lively and happy.

THRILLS MAKE "THE STORM" AT OHIO UNUSUAL PICTURE

Adaption from Stage Play To Show Here Last Time Tonight.

Adapted from the stage play of the same name, "The Storm," produced by Universal, will be shown for the final times tonight at the Ohio Theater after its initial showings yesterday.

Lupe Velez, William "Stage" Boyd and Paul Cavanagh have the leading roles in the human triangle around which the plot is built. The picture has to do with the penning up of two men and a girl, whom they both love, in a snow-bound cabin in the Canadian wilds.

In addition to the emotional effects of "The Storm," there are natural thrills of more than usual interest. There are scenes of an avalanche, blizzards and a canoe shooting the rapids. The company spent weeks in the High Sierras of California to obtain the proper atmosphere.

Two Vitaphone Varieties and a Metro News are other features of the program.

LOAN COMPANIES TO CELEBRATE FOUNDING

First Company Established 100 Years Ago; Delaware Has First in Ohio.

Marion building, savings and loan companies today joined with similar institutions in Ohio and throughout the nation in observance of the one hundredth anniversary of the founding of the first savings and loan company in America.

The building and loan idea came to America from England, having originated in that country due to the demands of land tenants for home financing funds. The first association was organized in a tavern at Frankford, Pa., on Jan. 3, 1831, the institution still being in existence.

The observance of the building and loan centennial also recalls the founding of the first building and loan company in Ohio, which was organized at Delaware in 1867.

The men who gathered in a tavern at Frankford a hundred years ago had dreams of a financial institution in which the savings of the many could be pooled to provide home financing funds. Now there are 12,000 building and loan associations with assets in excess of $9,000 000 000.

In Ohio building and loan resources have grown from a few thousand dollars in 1867 to more than $1,300,000,000 today.

GOODS VALUED AT $93,512 RECOVERED

Sergeant L. E. Reardon Makes Annual Police Report to Safety Director.

Stolen automobiles and bicycles and other merchandise valued at $93,512 were recovered during 1930 by the police department, the annual report submitted yesterday to Safety Director T. E. Sonnanstine by Sergeant L. E. Reardon shows.

Included in the recovered goods were 175 automobiles valued at $75,550 and 59 bicycles valued at $732. A miscellaneous lot of other merchandise valued at $17,230 completes the list of recovered goods.

The department averaged nearly four arrests a day, with a total of 1,376 for the year. Traffic summons were issued to 2,189 persons

Transients numbering 4,527 were given a "flop" or a place to sleep inside the jail during the year.

One hundred and twenty residences and business places were raided and searched for liquor

Prisoners were served 2,081 meals. The department received and attended to 3,954 complaints, and answered 2,344 police calls.

December recoveries by the department totaled $12,785 including 27 automobiles valued at $11,910.

Figues for both December and the entire year reveal the department recovered more stolen cars than were taken in the city. December automobile thefts were 25 while recoveries totaled 27. While thieves took 162 automobiles during the year, police recovered and returned 175, a number of cars stolen in other cities having been recovered here.

DECEMBER QUIET

December was a month of little building activity, the number of building permits issued by City Clerk Sylvester Larkin indicate. Only 10 permits for buildings expected to cost a total of $5,010 were issued during the month. The largest permit was issued for a $3,500 dwelling. Permits were issued for six garages expected to cost $83[illegible] and six dwelling additions expected to cost $675.

OFFICIALS TO BEGIN TERMS HERE MONDAY

Five Newcomers To Take Over Duties in Courthouse; All Democrats.

... become coroner, succeeding B. D. Osborn of Waldo, who was a candidate for renomination. Dr. Smith defeated Dr. ... Republican nominee. The fifth new official is Edward ... Prospect who on Monday will begin serving as representative in the general assembly ... He polled the second ... in the county to defeat ... Republican incumbent, ... Cookston.

... for two years has been ... the unexpired term of ..., who died soon after ... elected in 1925. O. J. Hord was appointed until the 1927 election when McCurdy was elected to complete the term.

Length of Terms

... in all of the six offices, with the exception of commissioner, are two years in length and will expire on the first Monday of January, 1933. McCurdy's term will not expire until the first Monday of January, 1935.

Two other county offices are affected by the November election, but their terms do not begin until later in the year. Auditor Earl E. Thomas, Republican, who was re-elected in November, will begin his second four-year term on the second Monday in March, while Ray ... Smallwood, Democrat, will remain ... Shelton, Republican, as treasurer for a two-year term ... the first Monday of September.

The offices of probate judge, clerk of courts and surveyor were not affected by the election. Both the probate judgeship and the surveyor's position are four-year terms and another election for those offices will not be held until November, 1932. The office of clerk of courts normally is two years, but after Clerk Everett B. Grigsby began his two-year term in August, 1929, the state law governing the office tenure of clerk of courts changed in order to have the term begin in January of each odd year. County commissioners then granted Grigsby an extension of one year and five months until the November, 1932, election.

Salaries Increase

Salaries of all county officials, with the exception of commissioners, will be increased when the new terms begin, as the result of the 1930 census returns which showed Marion county to have an increase in population. The law sets salaries of county officials according to the population of their respective counties.

Fye's salary will be $2,475 yearly, an increase of $135 over the former salary; Wilhelm will receive $2,550, an increase of $150, and Markert will receive $2,250, a $120 increase.

The salaries of auditor, treasurer and probate judge will be increased from $3,155 each to $3,300 each when their new terms begin. The clerk of courts will receive an annual stipend of $2,925 as compared to the present $2,775, and the surveyor will receive $3,195, a $75 addition to the present figure.

The law does not provide for an increase in the commissioners' salaries, each of which is $1,248.92, annually. No salary is paid the coroner, who receives only fees

A sliding scale governs the increases, a certain addition being allowed for the first 1,000 increase in population and a smaller amount being added for each additional 1,000 increase.

Fye will be assisted in the sheriff's office by Millard "Doc" Baldwin as chief deputy and Chester Cosgrove as road deputy, while Erin M. Bell, former deputy county recorder, will be clerk.

Markert announced today that J. R. Monahan of R. F. D. 7 would be deputy recorder with Miss Ardell M. Bohler of 474 East Church street as stenographer.

Coincident with the changes in the personnel of the offices of sheriff and recorder came the announcement today that Miss Janet Sycks of 225 Chase street had been added to the staff of clerk of courts to replace Mrs. W. Dexter Hazen, resigned.

W. Warren Bull of 192 East Columbia street yesterday began his new duties as deputy in the office of Probate Judge Oscar Gast. He succeeds W. Dexter Hazen, who recently announced the opening of law offices in the Barnhart building.

WILHELM TAKES OATH

Mickley Expected To Replace Prosecutor on Civil Service Board.

Russell M. Wilhelm, who today took the oath of office of county prosecutor, tonight will tender his resignation as clerk to the civil service commission. A meeting of the commission probably will be held to accept the resignation and name a successor to Wilhelm.

The commission is expected to elect Henry Mickley, young Marion attorney to the position Wilhelm will vacate to avoid a duplicity in public offices.

Mickley is one of the youngest members of the Marion county bar. In 1929 he was a candidate for the office of city solicitor. He is located in the offices of W. N. Harder, attorney.

Wilhelm has been clerk of the commission a year. He is a member of the law firm of Wilhelm & Robinson.

First meeting of Marion County Democratic Club, Monday, 7:30 p. m.—Adv.

JOFFRE LOSES LAST BATTLE OF CAREER

France in Mourning, Plans Notable Funeral Tribute to War Hero.

hospital. When information of the death was passed to the newspapermen the world "mort"—death—passed through the crowd. Men bared their heads and women made the sign of the cross.

City Expresses Grief

The news spread rapidly through Pairs, where death had been expected for more than a week. Bells tolled and official circles made preparations for honors in death due the man who in 1914 turned the invaders back from the very gates of Paris in the epic battle of the Marne.

Only Three Left

His death removes from the world stage all save three of the great military leaders of the World war—Field Marshal Von Hindenburg and General Eric Ludendorff, of Germany, and General John J. Pershing, of the United States. Of the French leaders of note only Marshal Petain, defender of Verdun, still lives, but unlike Foch or Joffre, he never was in supreme command of the French armies. One by one, Haig, Cadorna, Foch and others have passed from the scene.

Premier Steeg was the first to arrive at the hospital after announcement of the marshal's death. He was followed by Colonel Fabry, former Joffre aide, and Jean Chiappe, prefect of police. American Ambasasdor Edge, accompanied by Norman D. Armour, first secretary of the embassy, called shortly before the arrival of President Doumergue. General Gouraud and Marshal Petain.

Colonel Desmazes announced soon after death that the body would be embalmed this afternoon preparatory to lying in state at the chapel of the Ecole Militaire, the French military academy. The funeral will be next week, probably Wednesday.

Ill Many Weeks

Marshal Joffre's final illness dated back many weeks, when complaining of a pain in his leg his doctors found him a victim of arteritis. In his case the disease, which brings an inflammation of the arteries, settled in his legs and eventually a gangrenous condition developed which necessitated amputation.

Leg Amputated

On Dec. 19 he was taken secretly to the hospital Saint Jean De Dieu and that night, under the influence of local anaesthaesia only, he submitted to amputation at mid-thigh of his left leg. He would not take ether, informing the physicians he wished to see what they were doing to him.

He was kept alive during the last few days by injections of heavy doses of a serum which his physicians prepared. Had he been able to stand another operation his right leg also would have been amputated but it was feared the shock would precipitate death.

At 7 a. m., today Dr. Fontaine, feeling the pulse of the dying marshal, became convinced that death could be a question of only a very short period of time. Urgent telephone messages were sent to the family and friends, and members of the general staff who gathered about the bed.

Mme. Joffre knelt beside the recumbent form of her husband and Chaplain Bellesouer after administering absolution at 8 a. m. went quietly and knelt in a corner of the room, still murmuring his prayer for the dying. Dr. Fontaine continued to hold the wrist of the marshal.

Arrival of Death

Slowly he counted the pulsations and then amid a solemn hush, broken only by the priests frequent intonements, the marshal's great heart beat swiftly and then stopped altogether. This time there was no mistaking the end. It was death itself.

The marshal's face took on its customary serenity, lying white and placid upon the pillow. The deep lines which marked it like osme map of battle, however, were ample evidence of the effects of the great battle the marshal had fought, his last earthly conflict.

At 11 a. m. the body of the marshal reposed on the simple camp bed of a soldier. It was clothed in white dolman with the golden buttoned uniform worn in the colonies, where much of the dead man's pre war military fame was won. The hands were crossed, two candles burning on a small table beside the bed, and two nuns knelt nearby praying.

The body will be embalmed this afternoon and then will lie in state at the Ecole Militaire in accordance with a desire of the marshal. The funeral will be held next week perhaps Wednesday.

Colonel Desmazes, the marshal's aide-de-camp, announced later that he would be given the same kind of funeral as Marshal Foch, who died in 1929, with a service at the Cathedral of Notre Dame and a cortege through the streets of Paris

Halts Germans

In 1914 when the city of Paris was menaced by a gray-clad invading army, Joseph Jacques Joffre was called on for the second time to face a German attack from the east.

As an 18-year-old student at the Ecole Polytechnique in 1870, he had fought against the armies of Bismarck in the Franco-Prussian war. The second conflict early in the world war found his command backed almost to the walls of Paris. Thirty miles outside the capital Joffre ended his retreat and started an offensive which halted the onrushing foe and with General Gallienes troops, drove back Von Kluck's army.

It was the first battle of the Marne.

The decisive victory brought Joffre the title of Marshal of France, bestowed for the first time since the Franco-Prussian war. And his World war leadership brought him another title which meant much to the little soldier whose white mustaches and cheery face made him a familiar figure in Europe and America. To millions he was known as "Papa" Joffre.

Gets Promotion Early

Joffre was born at Riversaltes (Pyrenees-Orientales) on Jan. 4, 1852. Deciding on a military career, he received an appointment to the Ecole Polytechnique, "the West Point of France." When the Franco-German war broke out, he won a temporary appointment as a sub-lieutenant in the artillery corps engaged in the defense of Paris.

After the war he returned to complete his course at the Polytechnique and matriculated as a lieutenant in the engineers. Four years later he became a captain and for three years following was engaged in construction of defense works for Paris.

In 1879 he returned to regimental duty and six years later played a prominent part in an expedition to Formsoca. For his services there he was made a chevalier of the Legion of Honor on Sept. 7, 1885. A long tour of colonial service then claimed him before he returned to France.

By nature and through experience, there was real leadership in the kindly little soldier, whose blouse always was too loose, whose trousers bagged and whose mustaches bristled fiercely on his reddish, always cheery face.

Efficient in Retreat

He demonstrated that leadership in the retreat of the French army before the Germans advance in the early days of the World War. While for want of energetic command, the victorious German offense was weakening, the French retreat in Joffree's strong hands assumed an almost strong coherency.

When it seemed that Paris was destined once again to hear the tramp of German boots through its streets, General Galliene began the counter stroke of the force, and "Papa" Joffree, as he was called affectionately by his troops, issued a command for his soldiers to turn about and fight.

By Sept. 10, 1914, four days after the embattled French army, aided by the English under General Wilson, started to fight back, the German army was driven back across the Marne.

Earlier disasters of the war were dimmed in gratitude for the Marne victory, and Joffre became commander-in-chief of all the French forces.

Then in 1915, the marshal settled down to two different kinds of warfare—one in the trenches and the other against criticism.

Of the two, Papa Joffre preferred the trenches. He resented criticism of his Verdun offensive, of his trench warfare, a method for which critics said France was not prepared.

Then, when the German army hurled itself against the Verdun line, found it weak and nearly swept it away, "Papa" Joffre was compelled to give way to the late Marshal Foch in November, 1916.

Given Appointment

But to make his retirement the more palatable, he was appointed "technical adviser to the government," a more or less euphonious title.

When the United States entered the war, Joffre headed a French military mission to tell the Americans how much France needed help. On his tour of the country, his twinkling eyes, his walrus-like mustache and his sprightly demeanor made many admirers.

Joffre was chosen to be one of the French Academy's 40 Immortals in 1918, and he was given the Medaille Militaire, which exceeded in honor the grand cross of the Legion of Honor, bestowed on him in 1914.

During the last few years of his life, Joffre was embittered because of a controversy started by so-called military experts on the question of who won the battle of the Marne—Joffre or General Galliene.

For 10 years after the war he had remained silent concerning the battle and some took this silence as a tacit admission of the charges brought by certain individuals that he tried to evade the decisive battle of the early war and had favored retirement of the French force to the south, abandoinng Paris to the enemy.

Finally Answers

Finally, unable to endure the criticism, the aged marshal announced he had answered the "damnable charges" in his "Memoirs," which he had written for publication after his death.

He said he quoted from old army orders to prove that all of his moves in the series of retreats were strategic.

In recent years, "Papa" Joffre had been forced, because of a leg injury to remain indoors a great deal. He spent much of his time playing bridge and checkers.

tenant MacLaren. He is a graduate of Annapolis and a former navy flier, holding a commisison in the naval reserve.

Although Lieut. MacLaren was at the controls on the get-away, Mrs. Hart was expected to replace him soon after the start and do the bulk of the piloting. Both were dressed in spotless aerial togs, unsoiled by the grime of land take-offs, and Mrs. Hart wore a five-leaf clover, a rabbit's foot and an Indian penny as emblems of good luck.

Considering the early hour, a fair-sized crowd was present to wish them bon voyage. Mrs. Cora Mansfield, mother of Mrs. Hart, and Mrs. Georgia Gwynne, her sister, were on hand, as well as department of commerce inspectors and flying friends from Newark, N. J., and Jersey City.

Route Outlined

The pilots planned to cut southeast over the Atlantic and after a three-hour rest at Hamilton, Bermuda, and with the plane tuned up and refueled, hoped to resume the flight about sunset and make Horta, Azores, in 21 hours, traveling 2,042 miles. They figured the last lap to Paris, 1,520 miles, would take them 17¼ hours, setting them down on the River Seine, within the city limits, in less than 50 hours.

They carried with them a chart of the Seine, drawn by Dieudonne Coste after he and Maurice Bellonte had landed here on their Paris-New York flight. In case the river traffic is too heavy, they will come down on a small lake just outside the city.

SECKEL DENIED NEW TRIAL FOR LARCENY

Judge Scofield Takes Sentence Under Advisement After Overruling Motion.

Judge George B. Scofield of common pleas court this morning overruled a motion for a new trial in the case of Charles Seckel, 67, of Caledonia, whom a jury Monday found guilty of grand larceny.

The court's action followed a hearing on arguments by defense counsel, William P. Moloney and J. D. Williamson, and Prosecuting Attorney Alfred Donithen. Following his action, Judge Scofield said he would take the question of sentencing under advisement.

Defense counsel cited alleged errors in the conduct of the case and in the jury verdict which, it claimed, was the result of prejudice and was not based on the evidence.

Seckel was found guilty of the theft of $405 from Mrs. Amanda Smith, 79 year-old neighbor, last Sept. 11. Mrs. Smith claimed to have lost $3,000, but when city police arrested Seckel at Caledonia they found $405 on him. The money was identified by Mrs. Smith in court last Saturday when the trial was opened

FUNERAL SUNDAY

Burial will be made in the Pleasant Ridge cemetery near Sycamore.

Mrs. Twa was born in Ireland. She was a resident of Nevada for several years.

Her husband survives, with one son, Oliver Twa of Alberta, Canada, and the following daughters: Mrs. Lyle Armstrong of Trenton, Ontario; Mrs. Nettie Grant of Okotok, Alberta, Miss Lydia Twa of Chicago and Mrs. Anna Eckleberry of Nevada.

KENTON BARBER DIES

KENTON, Jan. 3—Earl E. Cole, 49, prominent Kenton barber, died in Antonio hospital after a brief illness of kidney trouble. He was born in Kenton and had lived here all of his life. The widow, three sons, a daughter, the mother and a sister survive. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

Why a Great Man Was Condemned

By The Schaffner-Queen Co.

It was a famous victory! A renowned general, in the days of ancient Greece—so the story goes — returned to Athens to claim his hard-won laurels and receive the ovations of the people. Instead, he was condemned to death.

And why? Because, in his haste in leaving the battlefield, he had neglected to give his fallen soldiers proper burial.

Thus did the Greeks of old resent gross irreverence and thoughtlessness—despite the fact that the man they felt compelled to sentence was in reality a hero!

Nor is negligence of that sort forgivable today. Funeral rites must be observed with meticulous care.

The experienced, conscientious funeral director, therefore, is prepared to meet all emergencies with absolute competence and reliability. He can be depended on for unerring helpfulness, thoroughness and all-around efficiency.

Trinity Baptist Church To Emphasize Missionary Magazine at Services.

Trinity Baptist church will give special emphasis at all church services and prayer meetings this month to "The Mail Box," Baptist Missionary magazine. The magazine is published by the Northern Baptist convention and is read in all Baptist churches from coast to coast in the month of January.

Letters of messages from the missionaries at all Baptist mission fields are printed in the magazine, one each day during the month. Over 300 copies were distributed last Sunday to the families of Trinity church.

Wednesday night a brief play-pageant of three scenes based on letters in the magazine will be given as "Living Letters from the Mail Box." Reading of the Mail Box will count 10 points toward this year's missionary reading contest in the church. Frequent references will be made to the publication during the month and on Wednesday night, Feb. 4, all who have read the letters will have the opportunity to express themselves regarding the contents.

Communion service will be observed at the Sunday morning services when Rev. Lawrence A. Wood, pastor, preaches on "The Uplifted Face." His sermon at night will be, "Through the Desert to the Fountain of God."

The Trinity Calendar for the week is as follows:

Monday, 7 p. m., Boy Scouts at church, 7:30 p. m., Senior W. W. G. at church; Tuesday, 7:30 p. m., Junior W. W. G. at church; Wednesday, 7:30 p. m., play-pageant, "The Mail Box"; Thursday 2 p. m., Circle No. 3, Ladies Aid at church, 7.). Intermediate W. W. G at church.

The New Year

A SERMONETTE

BY REV. JAMES M. FISHER

Associate Minister, First Presbyterian Church.

THE year 1930 is history. The year 1931 is in the making. We express this year as a "new" year. This is because everything looks new; we have not experienced much in this year. Certainly we feel that this year will be different from any other year; that something will happen in this year that will make our hearts rejoice and be glad. Perhaps more so than in any year that has passed. We, therefore, greet our friends and loved ones with—"A Happy New Year."

After a little while, we find ourselves realizing that the new year is not much different from other years. Look at the calender and you will find January 1931 has the same number of days as the old January had; the months of 1931 follow the same sequence as in other years; soon three hundred and sixty-five days will have passed by and 1931 will be the old year. With its passing, will be our old ideas as of 1930, old notions and ambitions and hopes, old fears, old grudges, old prejudices and at the close of this year we shall find ourselves just about the same as now.

We are looking forward to something better—better methods, better programs, better schools, better churches, better homes, better industrial order, in fact we want most everything better than it is now. This can be done. We can have a better industrial order by having a new race of both employers and employes; we can have better homes by having a new race of husbands and wives; better churches by having a new race of laymen and clergy; better schools by a new race of teachers and pupils; this same thought is true of all programs and methods. The solution to the problems of today is men and women who have been changed from the old to the new. New ideals worked out in a new spirit. Men must be made new. The New Year cannot make the change. This we know because we have had too many of them and after the year has passed by the results will have been about the same.

There must be in beings new thoughts, new feelings, new wills. As you read through the New Testament you will find that it makes no mention of a new year. The letters recorded there are not dated. We have just celebrated the birth of the Christ child. At the coming Easter season we expect to celebrate the death of Christ the Savior of the world but no one knows the exact date of either His death or birth. The problem of the New Testament was that of making the old man new and that is our problem of 1931. The New Year will be "new" only as we are willing to give up the old and become new. This is an organic growth. With each year we should find ourselves further away from the old and nearer to the new. With the new, we shall soon find ourselves in this better state to which we are looking. To accomplish this we need assistance. We need the help of One who is mightier than we are. We need what will make us new creatures. It is impossible for us to do this alone. Nicodemus knew he could not enter into the Kingdom unless he was born anew. He could not be born anew except by having the help from God. "God gave His only begotten Son that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish but have eternal life." Through Him and Him alone can we make the world better by making ourselves better. With Him we can do all things.

Having accomplished this task, with the assistance and help of Christ, what kind of a year would this New Year be? Truly 1931 would be different from other years. Would not our hearts rejoice and be glad? Would not our friends and loved ones remember how we greeted them at the opening of the year? "A Happy New Year." Well, let us try. Much can be accomplished in making this world better for God, for Christ and for our neighbors. "Wherefore if any man is in Christ, he is a new creature, the old things are passed away; behold, they are become new."

New Edition of "Camille" To Go On NBC Chain

OPERA lovers of the nation are promised an unusual opportunity Saturday night when through the facilities of the National Broadcasting Company, they will be privileged to listen in on the new "Camille" from 10 to 11 p. m.

The opera, written by a Chicago boy, Hamilton Forrest, who was once an office boy in the employ of Samuel Insull, has enjoyed phenomenal success in its first two performances at Chicago and is offered on the air at the time of its third presentation.

At the two previous performances the opera played to packed houses and was widely acclaimed by critics. The famous Mary Garden will play the leading role of Marguerite Gautier while the part of Armand is taken by Charles Hackett.

• • •

Beginning Saturday and continuing from Monday to next Saturday inclusive, the Columbia Broadcasting System will present a special program of music and informative talks from 6 to 6:30 p. m., as a tribute to the National Automobile Show, the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce and the automotive industry in general. The show will be held in New York.

• • •

"Lead Kindly Light," a favorite hymn of President Harding, will be featured on the Davey Tree hour Sunday at 5 p. m. Other melodies will include: "Roamin' in the Gloamin'," "Sweet and Low," "Somewhere a Voice Is Calling," "Red Wing," "On the Banks of the Wabash," "We Sail on the Ocean Blue," and "Where the River Shannon Flows."

Daily Proverb—"He who will not sail till all dangers are over must not put to sea."

"Man Kidnapped and Robbed Here,' read a headline in Friday's Star. There's no longer possibility of question. We're crowding right into the big-city class.

Professor Einstein lauds the joy of the people of America in working. Albert must have been hobnobbing with some hard-working spreaders of joy and sunshine in paragraphs.

There were eighty-five bank holdups in the state of Illinois during 1930. Paraphrasing the late Grover Cleveland; it's a crime condition and not a mere theory which confronts us.

A young Illinois woman and a West Virginia aviator were married in an airplane a mile above Charleston, in the latter state, New Year's day. If there's anything in the freak marriage dope, the divorce crash should be more violent than ordinarily in this case.

An Appeal for World Peace.

"Neither I nor my government nor the Italian people desire to bring about a war. • • • Italy—let me repeat it—will never take the initiative of starting a war. Italy needs peace; Fascism desires to secure for the Italian people in cooperation with all other peoples of the world a future of prosperity and peace."

So spoke Premier Benito Mussolini over the air to the people of America on New Year's day in the first transatlantic broadcast out of Italy, which came clearly and distinctly to a mighty audience of radio listeners.

Il Duce thus spoke in refutation of "the many rumors spread abroad" about Fascism and "the danger it is supposed to represent to the peace of the world," all of which he held groundless, explaining that the training of Fascist youth, instead of being for military purposes as has been charged, was "simply to make them strong, self-reliant and disciplined."

"I fought in the war as a soldier in the ranks," the premier went on. "I know what war means. Terrible memories of those years when whole generations of the youth of so many countries were laid low by the hail of lead has not been cancelled from my mind. I myself was seriously wounded. In the years that have since elapsed and at the present time both as man and as head of the government, I have had before me a panorama of political, economic and moral consequences of the war, and not in Italy alone.

"How can any one suppose that with this twofold experience I would consider with anything but horror the prospect of another war even if it were to arise between two countries only? A war nowadays would inevitably become a general war. Civilization itself would be endangered. New discoveries of science would make a future war even more dreadful than the last. The danger of death would not be reserved for fighters, but whole populations would be imperilled without the possibility of effective protection. • • • The American people should believe in our friendship and in our earnest desire to be at peace with all the nations of the earth."

Such was the reassuring message of this great world figure of today who has so frequently been charged with working against the peace of the world by saber-rattling—often to point a facetious paragraph, it is true, but far often in all earnestness. He says he wants peace, that his government and the Italian people want peace, and he tells why they want it and why not only they, but also the world, must have it if civilization is to endure.

Il Duce naturally did not confine his address to this stand and appeal for world peace. He touched upon many subjects of high present-day interest. And he made another appeal than that for world peace—a direct appeal to America. Reciting his inability to conceive of modern history without the United States, holding that had this country not brought its "formidable weight to bear on the situation, moved thereto mainly by idealistic motives," the war would not have been won, he urged that without the cooperation of the United States "the world can not recover from the World war crisis, and their help is necessary if prosperity is to return."

Much may be learned from the human voice. Hearing a man speak may entirely change our conception of his character. Certainly those hearing Premier Mussolini's address, his clear tones, his forceful manner of speaking, must have been impressed, if never before, by the strength of the man and given an insight into the qualities which made him the great leader he has proved in saving Italy from anarchy. And that he could prove so effective when speaking English will be held the more amazing when it is stated that he could not speak our language at the time he took over the Italian government as premier and, realizing the need of the ability to speak our language, learned to converse fluently in it within three months.

Marshal Joffre Passes On.

The striking figures in the World war who survived that terrible struggle, statesmen as well as military leaders, are passing one by one—Haig, Wilson, Diaz, Clemenceau, Foch, von Tirpitz—and now "Papa" Joffre has answered the final call.

Joseph Jacques Joffre, marshal of France, was a product of the Ecole Polytechnique in Paris, the "West Point of France," which he left to obtain a temporary appointment as a sub-lieutenant in the artillery corps engaged in defending Paris against the invading host in the Franco-Prussian war—a defense he saw rendered vain and the victorious Tuetons tramping the streets of the French capital to force the treaty exacted by the "Iron Chancellor" in the "Hall of Mirrors" at Versailles.

Following the war, Joffre resumed his studies in the Ecole Polytechnique from which he graduated and entered a regiment of engineers. He advanced, step by step, performing brilliantly in the French colonies, and the part he played in an expedition against Formosa brought him the decoration of a chevalier of the Legion of Honor. A long period of colonial service intervened before his return to France.

The second conflict early in the World war found Joffre backed almost to the walls of Paris. His retreat before the advancing Germans had been masterly, its resistance increasing day by day while the German offensive was weakening for lack of energetic command. Thirty miles from Paris, Joffre halted, Gallieni began his counter-offensive on the Ourcq, and the retreating command under Joffre turned to advance against the enemy and, with the assistance of the English under Wilson, drove the army of von Kluck back across the Marne. This was the first battle of the Marne, and the decisive victory won by him brought him the title of "Marshal of France," bestowed for the first time since the Franco-Prussian war, and he became commander-in-chief of the French armies. It brought him another title; that of "Papa Joffre," lovingly bestowed upon him by the millions of the soldiery of France.

Thus far, Joffre had to contend with alien enemies only, but almost from his elevation to commander-in-chief, he was compelled to fight not only the foreign invaders, but fault-finding and criticism in the capital, and when the French command about Verdun was almost annihilated, he was superseded by Foch as commander-in-chief of the French army, the deposed commander being appointed "technical adviser to the government."

The marshal's great victory in France was that won on the Marne, but he won another here in America, when he headed the military mission to the United States, following our entry into the war, to impress upon our people how greatly France had been bled and her pressing need of man power. His victory here was in the winning of the hearts of the American people. In recognition of his services to France both at home and abroad, he was made one of the French academy's "Forty Immortals" and he was given the "Medaille Militaire," a much greater honor than the grand cross of the "Legion of Honor" bestowed upon him four years before.

The last ten years of his life were embittered by the controversy waged by certain so-called military experts, who urged that the credit for the victory of the Marne should go to Gallieni rather than to Joffre. The records, however, show that his were the orders which started the advance that swept the enemy before it, and recognition for the victory and the honors it entailed went to him, and history will probably leave the record as it stands today.

The policy of the Alabama football eleven, as demonstrated in the game out in Pasadena with Washington State on New Year's day, seems to have been: "when you come to a stone wall you can't go through, go over it."

Out in Aurora, Illinois, a couple celebrated New Year's and the sixty-eighth anniversary of their marriage the same day. Here's one good beginning without a bad ending, but then, there's always the exception to the rule.

"The public ought to censor plays by its presence or its absence," remarks Rabbi Nathan Krass. That was all right up to the time the public taste became demoralized.

Palmyra, a village of 750 inhabitants out in Illinois, went through the year, 1930, without a hold-up, a robbery or any other crime, without an automobile accident, without any of its citizens suffering want and without suffering any depreciation in its business activities. But this may be said of a whole lot of cemeteries.

Our idea of an ambiguous headline is one over a story from Washington reading: "Survey Reveals 1930 as Driest Year Since 1867." It doesn't indicate whether it refers to unsatisfied thirsts or a meteorological condition.

Three robbers held up and robbed a woman and her four guests in her apartment in Cleveland and walked away with jewelry valued at $45,000. The moral to be drawn from this is: lock up your valuables before sitting in at a social poker game.

Divorces in Cook county, Illinois, numbered 10,100 in 1930, the highest record in the county's history, while the marriages numbered 37,172, the lowest in recent years. When there is one divorce for somewhat less than every four marriages, we of today may well ask; "Whither are we drifting?"

An Iowa woman is acting as a housekeeper for her divorced husband, the court divorcing the couple having decreed that the husband must thus retain her or pay her five dollars a week alimony. It's hard to figure where she gained materially by that decree.

The Foreign Policy association has made public in Washington figures showing that American investments abroad aggregate $17,528,254,000, an increase of $1,550,056,000, or 5.74 per cent., during the past year. The United States can hardly be doing so badly toward the outside world as some of the internationalists have been holding out in their condemnation of what they claim is America's niggardly financial policy toward the remainder of the world.

CAPITAL IN CANADA.

There is more United States capital invested in Canada than in any other foreign country. We have nearly $2,000,000,000 at work in industry there. A survey just completed by the department of commerce reveals these facts.

Is it not reasonable, then, that this country and Canada should be friends? We are a part of the Canadian system of mines, factories, sugar plantations and public utilities and every commercial and industrial activity in which Americans are engaged at home.

South America follows Canada in the use of United States capital to the tune of $1,547,895,000; Europe, with $1,352,735,000; Cuba and the West Indies, $1,053,751,000.

Here is some idea of the magnitude of our business abroad. With Capada we need no forts and no armies. We do business as neighbors and friends. We set the entire world an example of what may be done with respect to boundaries and interests. We have upward of a hundred years of this peace-time association to our credit. It constitutes an era. It proves what may be possible if bordering nations be willing to associate in peace and comfort and all kindly accord in all financial and industrial agreement.

It would be the height of ineptitude, of blind folly on the part of the statesmanship of either country to throw in the way of this rapport anything that would tend injuriously to affect it, whether through the ephemeral opportunism of tariffs or any other principles or methods calculated to strain relationships so commendable and so helpful as those which have existed between Canada and the United States for more than a century. Canada is one of our best customers and one of our best friends. —Cincinnati Enquirer.

THE OLD ORDER CHANGES

When the census bureau announced recently that more than fifty-six per cent. of the nation's inhabitants are now classed as "city folks," it merely helped us to recognize a steady change that has been going on for a good many years.

A predominantly rural nation for most of its existence, the United States in late years has taken to moving off the farm and into the cities at a great rate.

Of course, the census bureau is exaggerating a little bit. In its list of city dwellers it includes all people who live in towns that have as many as 2,500 inhabitants; and some day you might just try telling a New Yorker or a Chicagoan that a man from a town of that size isn't a rurallte.

However, the trend is there; and the important thing right now is to try to figure out what it's all going to mean.

At any rate, there is no sense in wailing about it. The change is going on, whether we like it or not. All we can do is make up our minds to get used to it. The reign of rural America is over. Eventually we shall be predominantly a nation of city folks.—Columbus Citizen.

World Awaits That Genius.

Again we are reminded by a sage that children's questions deserve to be answered. Surely; but the man or woman who is smart enough to answer them hasn't yet been born. —Yakima Republic.

Logan Blood Survived.

BY J. H. GALBRAITH.

When the Indian chief, Logan, said in his address to Lord Dunmore at the Pickaway county conference in 1774: "There runs not a drop of my blood in the veins of any living creature," he must have known that this was not strictly true, for only a few months before, in the note which he left at the scene of the massacre of the Roberts family in Virginia, he had referred to the carrying away of his "cousin" in captivity by the whites. She was still alive.

If he did not know that the cousin was alive and where she was, Colonel John Gibson, to whom he dictated the speech, could have told him, because it was Colonel Gibson who took her to Wheeling and placed her in good hands. She had been taken by the Greathouse party of marauders in their assaults on the Logan family, and in some way Colonel Gibson secured the Indian girl and took her to the home of Valentine Crawford, brother of Colonel Crawford, who was taken by the Indians and burned at the stake in northern Ohio. Valentine Crawford was in the employ of General Washington as his agent to look after his lands in the Ohio valley.

Logan also was mistaken in referring to the Indian girl as his cousin. She was his niece, the daughter of his sister. What became of this Indian girl no one knows. Crawford's home was a perfectly proper and safe place to take her, and unless she fell the victim of some disease and died, it is altogether probable that she was restored to her people if that was her wish when she reached maturity.

Upon no better grounds than this act of kindness to the captive Indian girl seems to rest the assertion that she was the daughter of Colonel Gibson, and that Gibson was really a brother-in-law to Logan. The Gibson's despite the rough life on the frontier to which they were inured, were well educted and refined, and it would require something more than this circumstance to support the oft-repeated rumor of his alliance with the Indian squaw.

Modern Conditions and the Lazy Life.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

There is no doubt that man is a slave to machinery. If it brings leisure to those who labor, this marks a beneficial change. But there are certain mechanical devices in common use that may be detrimental to health.

Modern living makes it passible for us to remain indoors all winter. City folks rarely go outdoors. The walk to the corner for necessities is done away with and the ordering is done by telephone. With the advent of the radio even entertainment is brought into our homes. Everything favors the lazy life.

It is common knowledge that the health of the nation as a whole is lowered during the winter months. I do not believe that this state of affairs is due to the weather. More likely it is due to our habits during this period.

Even though our homes are light and airy, we do not derive the beneficial rays of the sun as we do during the summer months. Sitting in sunlight that is transmitted through the windowpane is of little value. Ordinary window glass does not transmit the invisible rays of sunlight, which are so essential to health.

There has been an attempt to substitute quartz glass panes for the ordinary windowpane. Quartz glass transmits the ultra-violet portion of the sun's rays, a very desirable thing. As yet, for various reasons, the application of this theory has not been entirely practical.

Let us assume that I am correct in laying our poor health during the winter to our mode of living. If it is not due to the weather, how can we improve our health?

First, let me advise against overheating your home. The normal temperature of our bodies is about 98.6 F. The temperature indoors should not exceed seventy degrees. Regulate the temperature in your home to a constant level. Where possible do this in your office or the place in which you do your work. You will feel better for carrying out this program. Such a life will tune up your body to resist colds and infections.

Get as much of the outdoor sunshine as possible. Too many persons who are fond of the sunshine in the summer time, seem to forsake the good old sun in the winter. Walk and exercise outdoors as much as possible. Leave the car in the garage at least part of the time.

There is a tendency to overent in the winter time. It is true that food supplies the heat which is more in demand in winter. But this is no excuse for overeating. Eat a balanced diet, plenty of good food, but not too much.

There is no need of consuming large quantities of patent medicines during the winter. Your supply of lime, iron and phosphorus should be derived from your food stuffs and not from bottles. Eat plenty of green vegetables, fresh fruits and fresh milk. Salads should grace the table during the winter months as during the summer.

Above all, do not blame the weather for your cold or illness. It is usually your own fault. Carelessness is the chief cause of illness.

ANSWERS TO HEALTH QUERIES.

MRS. O.B. Q—Which is better for a convalescent, sleeping until 10 a. m., or an early morning auto drive?

A—Early morning drive, provided the patient can get proper sleep at night.

• • •

M.G.C. Q—What are some of the nerve-building foods?

2—Is it harmful to smoke two cigarets daily if one is more or less nervous otherwise?

A—Eat of a well-balanced diet and the nervous system will be properly nourished and taken care of. Eat more fruit and vegetables, avoiding too much meat, as well as excessive tea and coffee.

2—Not necessarily so, but might be a good idea to stop the habit entirely, at least for a time, and see whether or not there are any results.

• • •

MRS. H.I. Q—What do you advise for hives? It would be well to have a urinalysis made.

A—First correct your diet. A nervous condition, constipation, and in some instances, a kidney condition may be responsible for hives.

H.U.U. Q—What can I do for a red nose? It remains red both winter and summer?

A—A red nose is usually due to circulatory condition caused by a run-down state of health. Try to build up your general health and you will probably notice an improvement.

2—Your diet is important. Cut down on sugar, starches and coffee. Avoid constipation.

• • •

MRS. E.E.M. Q—What causes nervousness? I have been nervous for seven years.

A—Nervousness is caused by a run-down state of health. Try to build up your general health and you will probably benefit generally. —Copyright, 1931, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Greatest Mental Triumph.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

One of the proudest boasts that man can make is that a certain achievement, whatever it may be, is the result of the triumph of mind over matter. A little, fast, highly-trained football team defeats an aggregation of heavy, sluggish giants—thus demonstrating, according to the supporters of the former, the victory of intelligence over brute force. David slays Goliath with a stone from a sling. The engineer creates a mighty bridge out of pieces of inert matter—bars beams, bolts, rivets of steel. The architect erects a towering skyscraper, by sitting down at a drafting board, making some designs, and computing some stresses and strains. The sculptor sets to work upon a block of marble, and carves from it the image which lies latent in his brain.

If we carry over this line of reasoning to the problem of the origin and existence of the universe, we are gripped by the arresting thought that this universe of our represents, on a cosmic scale, the triumph of mind over matter. Scientists are gradually coming to accept the notion that nature is not infinite in exent; and that the amount of matter in the universe is only a tiny fraction of this vast, but finite space. The universe is finite, closed in its space dimensions. We, the denizens of this universe, can never get outside it; we always return upon ourselves.

In like manner, science is gradually demonstrating in a conclusive way that time is not infinitely extended into both past and future. As we follow the river of time backward, we are led unmistakably to its source. The geologists and the physicists have not agreed as to the age of the earth; but they have pretty well agreed that however hoary the world may be, that age is finite. Time is finite in its backward extension; there was a time before which the earth did not exist. By a similar argument, there must have been a time, however remote in the past, before which the present universe did not exist.

Throughout history, cranks and misguided geniuses, frauds and fakers, have been attempting to make machines which would go on forever But no perpetual motion machine has ever been invented; and science sternly sets its face against the notion that such a machine has ever been, can be, or will ever be invented. For the scientists the perpetual motion machine is forever an impossibility.

In consequence of this point of view, which has the soundest justification, it would be irrational for the scientist to believe that the universe is a perpetual-motion machine. Now the second law of thermodynamics, which seems to be one of the most solidly based of all physical laws, says that all spontaneous processes that occur in nature involve an increase in entropy.

Entropy is a measure of randomness. Consequently entropy must ever increase until it has reached a final state, when it can increase no further. This is the process through which the physical universe is now passing. Unless we are prepared to reject the conclusions of thermodynamics, then the universe after certain countable aeons have passed, will reach the stage when further progress becomes impossible. That final state spells the death of the universe

There was, then, a beginning for the universe; and there will be an end. The beginning connotes creation; and creation connotes a creator. Sir James Jeans suggests that the universe is a universe of thought. In that case, the creation of the universe must have been an act of thought. Our universe represents the triumph of mind over matter. But it represents something far more than that. Modern scientific discovery indicates that matter, space and time were all the creation of mind. And that the Deity or Eternal Mind, like the artist outside his creation, works outside of space and time.—Copyright, 1931, International Feature Service, Inc.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, Jan. 3—Purely personal piffle: The odor of bananas is remindful of hospitals. Talking to a lady wearing a riding habit gives me a feeling of complete inferiority. I always enter a Pullman diner expecting somebody to recognize me. But nobody ever has. I have never been an active pall-bearer.

My favorite feminine name is Hope. A favorite masculine name is Michael. I am unable to use a pen without smudging my fingers. I'm far from a goody-goody, but have a curious collection of old-fashioned scruples instilled by a grandmother. And observed from purely sentimental reasons.

Mary Boland's my favorite comedienne. Ziegfeld and I have at least one telephone quarrel a year. After the last one he sent me a bottle of perfume. One of my intimates is H. T. Webster, whom I have seen but once in five years. But we exchange insulting letters regularly. He addresses me as Oscar. I call him Harold.

I have never found a satisfactory shoe buttoner. Maybelle Manning has the most distinctive handwriting of any lady I know. The most indecipherable is that of Gilbert White, the portrait painter. I have a collection of safety razors. I was one of the first two reporters to interview the Wright brothers.

And I spoke of them as "Impractical dreamers." The first city I ever visited was St. Joseph, Missouri. I have been in every city of importance in America save Portland, Maine. The most expensive hotel I ever stopped at was the Whitehall in Palm Beach, Florida. My caricature is not on display at Sardi's.

The greatest reaction from anything I have written was about a Mexican sheepherder in the Cosmopolitan The article I thought best was printed in a Sunday newspaper and caused no comment whatever. I like to sleep in old houses with wind-creaking shutters

The only tune I don't whistle offkey is "In the Good Old Summertime." In strange hotels I eavesdrop on quarreling in an adjoining room. And I have listened in on some dandies. The best of all was in the Biltmore in Los Angeles. I despise gambling, and am a poor loser.

I received 3,187 cards last Christmas. The most polished gentleman I ever met was an international crook, now spending twenty years in a British jail. Nothing makes me laugh on the screen like Bustor Keaton's "dead pan." I enjoy getting to a theater early to watch the seating of the audience. But I want to be first out when the curtain falls

When I become extremely agitated the sides of my neck break out in a rash. And my voice squeaks. I am continually stepping off curbs unexpectedly and biting my tongue. I wouldn't ride up to the top of the Chrysler building and look down for anything. Neither my wife nor I pout. We speak our minds and forget it.

• • •

I read Ed. Howe's Monthly from cover to cover regularly. Hiccups always frighten me. The man who saved me from disaster in the market crash was the late Will Hogg. He predicted it three years before it happened, to the very month.

I have been introduced to Charles M. Schwab three times—at a Rotary luncheon in Indianapolis, on the promenade at Monte Carlo and in the lobby of the Ritz, New York. Still he doesn't know me, which gives you an idea of my devastating personality. I believe the most promising composer of the moment is Sidney Romberg. The show enjoyed most this winter is "Grand Hotel." The book: Arnold Bennett's "Imperial Palace."

• • •

A young lady who saw me passing through the lobby of the St. Francis hotel in San Francisco wrote: "You have about as much sex appeal as Lincoln's Gettysburg speech." The only people who have hoodwinked me are those I trusted. And I've always managed to even things. I do not believe New York theaters try to check the ticket speculating evil. Night clubs depress me. I chew five cakes of gum at a time if nobody is looking.

For two years I have had a whopping standing offer for a fifteen-minute weekly talk over the radio. I am never without old-fashioned peppermint stick candy. A Washington Daybook.

BY HERBERT PLUMMER.

Washington, Jan. 3 — An experienced diplomat is on duty at the American embassy in Madrid during this troublesome period for King Alfonso of Spain.

And one in whom the state department has the greatest confidence.

Irwin Laughlin, the American ambassador, has spent more than a quarter of a century in the diplomatic service of his country, serving in practically every important post on the continent as well as in Japan.

He has faced crises before. He was in London as secretary of the American embassy from 1912 to 1917 and acted as charge d'affaires for seven months. He was in this important post during the difficult days of the World war.

"Those days were terrible," he said recently. "Many times I wished that I were in the trenches."

• • •

A true cosmopolite is Ambassador Laughlin. Of medium height, partly bald and wearing a closely-cropped gray mustache, he has just passed his fifty-ninth birthday. He talks with deliberation and earnestness. His laugh is hearty.

He left the steel industry in Pittsburgh, six years after he had entered business, to make his first contact with diplomacy. That was in 1903, when he became private secretary to the American minister to Japan. Since then diplomacy has been his career.

He has just returned to Madrid after a visit to this country. His mansion is Crescent place just off fashionable Sixteenth street is a show place of Washington. He never closes it despite the fact that most of the time he is away.

With him to his various diplomatic posts go his family—wife, son and daughter—his horses and dogs.

"We travel like a menagerie," he once said laughingly. "One of the reasons I left Greece—he was American minister there two years of the Coolidge administration—was that I had to be away from my children."

• • •

He took Gray Dawn and Scamp with him when he went to Madrid as ambassador last year. Gray Dawn is his favorite mount. Scamp is the Irish terrier of the Laughlin children.

There is nothing the ambassador likes more than to be in the saddle on a good jumper. On Gray Dawn he has won numerous ribbons in horse shows around Washington.

"My friends were surprised," he said, "when I made up my mind to take Gray Dawn with me. They told me that I would find the best horses in the world in Spain.

"I know that. But then Gray Dawn—there's hardly another like him.

"And as for Scamp—he simply had to be taken along. The children would hear to nothing else."

Refreshments were served at small tables lighted by pink candles. A short business meeting followed. Miss Naomi Rinehart, chairman of refreshments was assisted by Miss Mary Hamner, Gail Doan and Charles Jones. Preceding the contests of the evening, Miss Melvina Summers and Miss Clara Leffler entertained with a piano and violin duo.

Thief Who Looted Safe Returns 50 Cents to Man

MT. GILEAD, Jan. 3 — A "restitution" letter was received by G. G. Denton, local insurance man, Friday. Fifty cents in stamps and a slip of paper containing the words "restitution money" were the only contents of the letter, which bore a Mt. Gilead postmark. Mr. Denton believes the money to be from the thief who entered his office one Sunday last April and appropriated some small change, overlooking $14 in bills in another drawer.

CONTINUE HUNT FOR KIDNAPER OF YOUTH

Parents of Abductor of Busch Heir Being Held in Prison.

By The Associated Press

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 3—Search continued today for Charles V. Abernathy, 28-year-old negro, who New Year's eve kidnaped Adolphus Busch Orthwein, 13, great-grandson of Adolphus Busch, late multi-millionaire.

As the search for Abernathy went on, his father, Pearl Abernathy, real estate dealer, who named his son as the abductor, and Mrs. Charles Abernathy were being held incommunicado in jail.

Pearl Abernathy, who was responsible for the release of the Orthwein boy, was arrested yesterday, and Mrs. Charles Abernathy was arrested last night.

The elder Abernathys story was that his daughter-in-law came to his home New Year's day and said her husband was acting strangely. He went to his son's home, he said, and there found a white boy whom he recognized from newspaper descriptions as the Busch heir. He said he got in touch with the boy's father, Percy L. Orthwein, and made arrangements for the return of the child.

$20,000 FIRES UNDER PROBE

Two Buildings on Marsh Are Swept by Flames of Unknown Origin.

Special To The Star

KENTON, Jan. 3—Investigation was being made today into two fires which late last night destroyed two large storage sheds and a barn, 12 miles west of Kenton, entailing damage estimated at near $20,000.

The heaviest loser was Floyd Stalder of near Nigger Island and an official of the Moose lodge, whose large storage shed and barn burned to the ground by fire of unknown origin.

A second blaze destroyed an onion crate storage shed on the George Sheldon farm, west of the city, and about a mile distant from the Stalder blaze, causing damage estimated at approximately $5,000.

The loss in each instance was only partially covered by insurance.

Better than 5,000 bushels of onions, a thousand bushels of oats, 20 tons of hay, 100 shocks of corn fodder and 100 tons of carrots were burned in the Stalder storage and barn, while 1000 crates, a few tilizer drill and corn planter were burned at the Sheldon farm tenanted by Carl Clark.

NEW TRENDS EVIDENT IN 1931 CAR MODELS

Auto Show In N. Y. Reveals Efforts To Increase Speed, Pickup.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, Jan. 3—Trends toward pointed radiators, more somber hues, low bodies of accentuated length and increased speed and pickup for the 1931 auto models were revealed today with the opening of the thirty-first national automobile show at Grand Central palace.

Of the more than 300 new car and chassis models displayed, 35 of them passenger cars, every one revealed some change in design or mechanical improvement.

Eight cylinder cars led the sixes by a slight margin, manufacturers said they sought "body steadiness" as well as beauty. Openings to front and back compartments were generally wider.

The swing away from the ultra bright colors of former years was definite with pastel shades of green, black, brown and maroon leading in popularity. Wire wheels were in color and chromium.

The manufacturers said increased speed reflected improved roads and long trunk highways which permit speeds up to 65 miles an hour for long distances, while complications of traffic necessitated quicker pickup. There also was a trend toward larger fuel supply tanks.

TAX PROPOSED

Levy on Theater Tickets Considered in Move to Aid Charity.

By United Press

COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 3—A tax of five or ten cents may be added to theater tickets in the near future to provide funds for the city to carry out its charity program.

This became known today when Councilman George F. Ketterer was making arrangements for a conference between councilmen and theater managers probably to be held some time Saturday.

The proposal followed announcement that the city would need $400,000 for hospitalization of indigent patients and for family service.

Two Dead, One Wounded as Result of Quarrel

STEUBENVILLE, O., Jan. 3—Two persons were dead today and one was in critical condition of bullet wounds received as an aftermath of a family quarrel here yesterday.

Vincenzo Uzzi, 45, shot himself to death after wounding his wife, Lucy, 40, who died several hours later, and his brother-in-law, Joe Ammenella, 45, whose condition was reported serious.

Uzzi turned the pistol on himself when surrounded by officers.

Dan Cupid Runs Ahead of Divorce Court Here

Probate court issued 341 marriage licenses during 1930, a check-up of the court records revealed today.

Common pleas court, on the other hand, granted 89 divorces during the year. A total of 119 divorce petitions were filed but a number were refused decrees and several others were withdrawn by the plaintiffs.

UPPER SANDUSKY, Jan. 3 — Funeral services for John H. Dardinger, 71, who died at his home Thursday morning, will be held Sunday at 2:30 p. m. in the Methodist Protestant church at Forest. Burial will be made in the Houston cemetery.

Mr. Dardinger was born Oct. 26, 1859, in Franklin county. The widow and a son, Carl, survive with the following brothers and sisters: Charles Dardinger of Worthington, Fred Dardinger of Buckeye Lake, Samuel and Jacob Dardinger of Columbus; Mrs. Samuel Jones of Fostoria; Mrs. John Ropp of Forest and Louis Dardinger.

YOUNGSTOWN SLICES PROTECTIVE FORCES

Half of Fire, Police Forces Laid Off; No Money for Salaries.

By The Associated Press

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Jan. 3—Only half a force was available to combat crime and fire in this city today.

All policemen and firemen went on half-time duty by order of Mayor Joseph L. Heffernan, who explained that drastic cut in the city's operating expenses was made "imperative because of finances, resulting from tax delinquencies."

Doubling of insurance rates, no more responses to calls outside the city limits and the closing of four or five stations were consequences seen by Fire Chief Harry Callan.

Safty Director James S. Jones said "we hold on to these departments as long as we could, but now there is nothing else to do." The order affects about 300 men in the two departments and will save about $350,000 a year, he estimated. Mayor Heffernon said the curtailed schedule would remain in effect "until such time as the legislature gives us the relief needed."

ADMITS FRAUD

Lancaster Bank Official Confesses Theft of $100,000 in 10 Years.

By The Associated Press

LANCASTER, O., Jan. 3—Harry C. Jordan, secretary of the Security Savings & Loan company, has admitted defalcations estimated at $100,000, Prosecuting Attorney Russell Cunningham said today.

Prosecutor Cunningham said Jordan estimated the total which had been obtained during the past eight or 10 years. The prosecutor said Jordon told him he obtained the money and covered it with fictitious mortgages.

Jordan was arrested by Cunningham but was released on his own recognizance after he promised to turn his entire property over to the bank, Cunningham said. The property, the official said, will cover about half of the loss.

HOME DESTROYED

Loss in Fire Near Marseilles Placed at $3,000

MARSEILLES, Jan. 3—Damage estimated at $3,000 was caused by a fire which yesterday destroyed the George Arnold home five miles east of here.

Only a sewing machine and a radio were saved from the blaze which destroyed the house and its contents. The home is a seven room frame structure.

A defective flue was blamed for the blaze. The loss is partially covered by insurance.

DEMOCRATIC CLUB WILL MEET MONDAY

Party Group Will Elect Secretary and Board of Trustees, Discuss By-Laws.

Election of a secretary and board of trustees will feature the first regular meeting of the newly-organized Marion County Democratic club Monday at 7:30 p. m. in the Democratic headquarters in the Marion National Bank building, it was announced today by Ralph E. Grubaugh, president.

The club at present is made up of 100 charter members but a membership of 2,000 or more is expected by Grubaugh. Both men and women are included in the membership, although the club is a separate entity from the Marion County Democratic Women's club which will continue to function.

A constitution and by-laws also will be presented for the club's approval by the committee in charge made up of B. F. Roller, Russell M. Wilhelm and Sylvester Larkin.

The club was organized last month at which time Grubaugh was made president and Homer D. Cole treasurer.

GUNWOMAN DEMAND $5,000 FROM LOAN CO

Cleveland Female Bank Bandit Flees After Getting $400.

By United Press

CLEVELAND, Jan. 3—A young gunwoman walked into the City Savings & Loan Co. bank here today and nonchalantly demanded $5,000.

The manager of the bank, covered by the pistol the gunwoman flourished, tossed her a package of money containing $400 and she fled.

The woman entered the bank while only Alexander G. De Morbus, cashier, and Miss Elsie Bell, his assistant, were present.

She walked quietly up to the cage behind which Miss Bell sat.

Covering Miss Bell with a revolver, she demanded: "Give me $5,000."

Then she saw De Morbus in the rear of the bank. He also was covered with the woman's pistol. De Morbus took a package of money from the vault and handed it to Miss Bell. The assistant cashier tossed the package to the gunwoman. Then the gunwoman walked out.

INFANT PASSES AWAY

Welfare Society Aids 522 Families in Month

At the close of four weeks of operation, Dec. 27, a total of 1,064 persons had been aided through the Family Welfare society, reports filed in the Commissary department show. These were included in 522 different families.

During the week ending Dec. 27, 94 families had been served, 60 men, 26 women, 43 girls and 47 boys, making a total of 176 persons. Shoes repaired during the four weeks number 1,132. Of these 67 pairs were resoled, 75 pairs equipped with heels and 90 pairs patched.

A total of 62 men have contributed their servies for work in exchange for clothing during the four weeks and in the same period nine women have given their time in exchange for necessities for themselves and their families. A total of 22 men have volunteered their services during the four weeks and 196 women have assisted in the sewing rooms and in contributing to various phases of the work.

Stockings and underwear have been most in demand during the four weeks the report shows. A total of 649 pieces of underwear has been distributed and 635 pairs of stockings. Other articles distributed include 419 pairs of shoes, 253 pairs of pants, 327 shirts, 162 overcoats, 289 dresses, 44 petticoats, 78 hats and caps, 42 sweaters, 55 pairs of overshoes, 21 pairs of galoshes, three raincoats, 17 gowns and pajamas, 12 pairs of gloves, three stoves, three beds, nine chairs, 58 dishes and pans, 13 curtains, one davenport, four rugs and numerous other necessities.

NUPTIAL DAY

Man Marries Girl On Silver Anniversary of Mother, Grandmother.

On the silver wedding anniversary of his parents and grandmother, Howard C. Gruber Thursday was united in marriage to Miss Katherine Gottfried, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Gottfried of Waldo.

The ring ceremony was read in the presence of the bridegroom's parents and grandparents by David H. Bailey at Ada.

Dr. Bailey officiated at the double wedding 25 years ago of bridegroom's mother, Mrs. W. A. Gruber, and grandmother, Mrs. S. R. Worden.

The newly married couple will make their home on a farm east of here.

Eagles To Promote Pensions for Aged

Following decision of the state Eagles organization to submit to the next legislature an old age pension bill, President Sherman L. Perry of the local aerie has instructed James L. Kirby, chairman of the local pension committee, to confer with representatives and state senators in the interest of the proposed measure.

This was revealed by John Abel, secretary of the local aerie and national trustee of the organization, who said that Kirby will ask Ed. F. Lauer of Prospect, state representative, and State Senators Robert L. Rohe of Tiffin and J. P. Bower of Rushylvania to support the measure.

Marion Bank Clearings Lowest in Five Weeks

The lowest six-day total of bank clearings in five weeks was reported by the Marion County Bank, clearing house, this week. The clearings total for the week is $302,485.75, a decrease from clearings of the preceding week when $317,803.09 was cleared.

High clearings this week were reported yesterday when $94,894.55 was cleared. This figure was nearly twice the clearings of $48,746.75 reported a week ago.

The clearing figure this week was crippled by a holiday.

To Open Revival — Evangelist James T. Maffin of Marion has announced the opening of revival meetings Sunday night at 385 West Center street. The services, to be open to the public, will continue indefinitely and will be held each night at 7:30 p. m.

The Sign of Safe INSURANCE

What will happen tomorrow? ARE your home and business property insured against fire, explosion and tornado—your auto against fire, theft, collision, etc.—your personal effects against theft, pilferage and fire—your furs and jewelry against the many hazards to which such valuables are exposed—your income producing properties against rent losses? You can't see tomorrow, but you can prevent financial loss.

Silent-Shift Syncro-Mesh Transmission and Torque Tube Drive in

BUICK'S Eight at $1025 f. o. b. Flint, Michigan

Now Buick announces two new and vitally important features in its Series 50 Valve-in-Head Straight Eight:

Silent-Shift Syncro-Mesh Transmission and Torque Tube Drive

And these additional features are offered at no increase in price! This means that you can purchase any one of the six Buick body types listing from $1025 to $1095 and obtain Syncro-Mesh Transmission, Torque Tube Drive, Valve-in-Head Straight Eight Engine and Insulated Body by Fisher, exactly as in Buick's three other series.

Value such as this explains why Buick is winning more than 56 out of every 100 sales among eight-cylinder cars in its price range—while 14 other manufacturers share the remaining 44.

Own a Buick Eight. Its bigness and brilliance mean true luxury. Its dependability and more than 100,000 miles endurance mean true economy. A small car in trade will very likely take care of the down payment.

Just Things

Late Greeters

TARDY folks, wrestling breathlessly with one or more of the pens on the desks in the postoffice lobby the day before New Year's saw the mute evidence of others just as tardy, in the form of envelopes from stationery stores, which it was plain to be seen had held greeting cards. It would seem to us that dealers in holiday greetings, looking for business, could do no better than start a campaign exhorting folks to buy their cards now in preparation for the rush next December. Some of the late, late folks haven't sent all theirs yet.

False Notions

ISN'T it pretty much the truth that most of us have a false sense of values? As proof of the pudding here's the yarn: A salesman in a local furniture store prices a good looking chair at a very attractive figure to a customer and what do you suppose the customer said? "What's the matter with it?" Had said salesman priced said chair 15 or 20 dollars higher said customer would have mortgaged the family pewter to get it because she liked it. However, the purchase was made and so far is more than satisfactory but the price still remains a puzzle.

Calendars

BRIGHT new calendars adorn the office desks and the battle-scarred veterans of 1930 have been relegated to the waste paper baskets. The new ones are real pretty too, but no doubt if one could remember the old ones seemed just as pretty. But no one seems to put any of those lovely ornate ones with the life-like roses done in shiny cardboard with cut-out effect, which did duty as an authority on the months and days, a wall adornment and a wall pocket.

INITIATES CLASS

Plans for a birthday party Jan. 16 for all members having birthdays in January, were made at a meeting of Whitney Lodge No. 846 Ladies Auxiliary to the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, last night in Central Labor hall. Jubilee's Pardner

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

SATURDAY. One more day and we will be in school, and that will be the first time we have been in school this year. But that don't seem like it sounds. Christmas is over, and I have got new skates and a new knife, and New Years is over, and next will come Valentine Day, and then George Washington's birthday, and then it will be summer pretty soon and the Fourth. It seems like the New Year has hardly started till it is half gone. But I won't care how soon summer comes. None of our bunch will. I let Jubilee down by his rope and was thinking of all the snakes and frogs and turkles we will watch when it is warm again and wondering how they are getting along wherever they are staying. I bet when they see us coming they will be wishing it was winter yet.

We went over to Banty's house, because his mother had went to a bridge club, and his father had got a job painting someone's house on the inside. Nibs asted him how he craved out the paint, and Banty said paint don't ever freeze, and Nibs lifted a big bucket that had never been opened, and he said it was froze solid because otherwise it wouldn't be so heavy. Banty took a hammer and made a hole in the top with a nail, and we all tried to look in it but we couldn't see anything, so Nibs said that proved it was froze, Banty told him if he would get his eye down close and look at the hole he would prove to him it wasn't froze. So Nibs did, and Banty hit the lid of the bucket a good hard lick with the hammer and there was Nibs standing up with one eye full of white paint and a drop of it hanging to the end of his nose. He wiped it on his sleeve, and we found some old rags and wiped it, and we squirted mouths full of water in it, and Banty said water isn't any good for paint, and if he had some gasoline that would be the stuff to squirt in it, but just then someone yoo-hooed and String came in, and Nibs told him there was something in the paint bucket he ought to look through the nail hole and see, so String looked and Nibs hit it with the hammer and shot his eye full of paint, and we were all hollering our heads off at the way String looked, and he paisted Nibs and they clinch and rolled over on the floor and upset some paint, and just then Banty's father opened the door and came in, and I bet my grandfather would of been jealous if he had heard some of the words he said. He helped clean out Nibs' and String's eyes and put some vaseline in them, and then he run us out and made Banty go in the house and stay. We found our snow house full of icicles from the water Feeble had squirted on it. Mealy would of been the same if we hadn't tooken her in the house. It was pretty.

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

With the Return, The Old Farmhouse Again Hums with Life.

"LOOSEN that tension! Something's going to snap if you don't. And how do you think Junior will feel to see his mother spread out, a tangle of broken springs over the landscape, when he gets here?"

Katherine's soft, laughing voice, with an undertone of seriousness, brought me out of my reverie, and so soothing, as always, is her presence that my taut nerves relaxed a little.

"That's better," she said, as I put my hand up to clasp the one which rested on my shoulder. "I'll quote you something banal as a reward. Everything, even a small son's return home, comes to her who waits——"

"Long enough," I finished rebelliously, and then, as if in reproof of my impatience, there was the sound of a familiar motor horn down the road, and the household sprang into life. My mother-in-law and my father hurried out to the veranda. Katie's joyous, hysterical giggle sounded from the kitchen, as she rushed for the door; Jim appeared from the side of the house, ready to see to the car and the luggage, and Dicky dashed past me down the veranda steps to meet the big car turning in at the farmyard gate. I would have been with him, but Katherine's hand was on my arm with a warning. "Careful, dear; you mustn't rush around yet," and so it seemed an eternity, though only a second or two, before Junior was in my arms, rapturously hugging me and demanding vociferously between kisses:

"Where's that baby?"

I did not answer him for a minute, for Roderick, Dicky's orphaned nephew, a year older than Junior, had also flung himself upon me, and not for the "wealth of the Indies," would I have let him feel that his welcome was any whit less loving and enthusiastic than the one I was according my own small son. But at his echo of Junior's query, I took their clinging arms from around my neck, and with them ranged, one upon each side of me, led them to the carriage where our baby lay asleep. Her tiny hands crumpled beneath her chin, her ridiculous dot of a face partly hidden in her pillow.

"Gee!" Junior exclaimed, curiosity, even awe, in his face and voice! and "Gee!" Roderick uttered dutifully adding with an indefinable air of disappointment, "But I thought she'd be bigger didn't you, Jun?"

Junior bristled ludicrously.

"She's big enough," he said, with the air of a man resenting an imputation against some prized possession. "You look out, Rod, what you say about her. She's my sister, ain't she, Mums, the one you promised me?"

"But she's my cousin," Roderick protested, hotly. "Auntie Madge told me she'd be, and a cousin is just as good as a sister, any day. And I guess I can say what I want about my own cousin—I don't mean anything bad," he amended, hastily, "but it ain't nothin' to say she might be bigger."

I snatched quickly at the opportunity for switching their belligerent minds to another track. Not now did I wish to deal with a most delicate problem, that of a certain selfish, arrogant attitude of Junior's toward his cousin, which, despite his genuine affection for Roderick, had given me much troubled thought in the months which elapsed between Roderick's coming to us at Christmastime, and his going away with Junior to the delightful home in the Connecticut hills, where the Underwoods had cared for them. It was a natural result, of course, of Junior's being an only child for so long. This mite beside me, I reflected, remorsefully, should have come to us when Junior was not yet past the "baby" stage himself. Then we could have trained him to give up gracefully, something which was now a most difficult task to inculcate.

"How many times have I told you both?" I demanded, with a specious air of sternness, "not to say 'ain't' and 'ain't nothin'? I don't believe Aunt Lillian has been very strict with you."

"I deny that aspersion," Harry Underwood's big voice boomed, with a portentous wink at me in recognition of my ruse. "They both had their lickings regular just the same as their meals. Lil used to take 'em on before breakfast and lunch, but she got sort of tired at night, so I did the larruping before dinner, and all the little odd jobs in between. It's my private opinion that they need one, now. We didn't stop on the road to give it to 'em. Come on, kids! Nobody ever shall accuse Père Underwood of not doing his duty."

He bent down from his tremendous height, picked them up as easily as if they had been kittens, and, tucking one under each arm, bore them away, giggling and shrieking shrilly in appreciation of the jest of the big man they adored. But Junior stopped chuckling as he neared the door, and twisting his head toward me, called out: "Mums! How does she 'put my nose out of joint?' A woman at the farm said she would."

"She'll explain that later," Mr. Underwood said, hastily. "You must give her time to think it out, for it's a complicated question."

"All right." Junior assented, satisfied, but as the wildly swinging legs of the small boys disappeared through the door, my mother-in-law said, cautiously:

"Well, I hope you're satisfied now, Margaret. You see your new fangled ideas haven't changed the situation one mite."

CHAPTER 11

The Price of Folly

VIVIENNE eyed Burns suspiciously as he agreed to let her buy his silence. What would be his price?

Burns took another gulp from his highball before continuing.

"I'm the very soul of fairness," he said. "All I ask is a private peep of Channing's picture of you."

"How did you know—it's like that?" She sketched a vague curve with her cigaret.

"Guessed again," he told her.

Channing was coming toward them.

"I see you haven't even missed me," he said pleasantly.

Burns winked at Vivienne.

"Miss Gray and I were discussing art."

"I told him about the statue," Vivienne lied with assumed contriteness.

"Can't we have a look at it? If Miss Gray doesn't mind," asked Burns.

Channing did some rapid thinking. He had no doubt that Vivienne's motive was something more than deviltry. Even at that, he was agreeable. He had the first porcelain copy of the little figure. Only he must warn her privately to be quiet about the murals. He meant to let out no hint of those until the canvases were in place on the new theater's walls.

"Bruce, console yourself with a drink while we get out the statue," Channing signed to Vivienne.

"Say, shouldn't we sort of stage this?" Burns' dramatic instinct had fostered an idea. "Suppose I prepare the audience for the big surprise."

"All right," Channing assented. "You're elected official barker."

Channing draped a black velvet cloth over a table and posed the statue on it.

"La-dies and gen-tlemen!" Burns' voice was reminiscent of a circus ballyhoo. "You see before you, in the center of the arena, a large and commodious stage." Channing's model-dais had been pushed into the middle of the vacant dance floor.

"There, shortly, you will see a statue so marvelously life-like that you will not believe your eyes.

"Everyone will have ample opportunity to witness this ravishing spectacle. Then with a magic wave of my riding crop, I shall produce the original—"

Then the orchestra began and everyone watched expectantly as the servants carrying the table came in.

"Oh, isn't it simply exquisite!" One of the women at Aileen's side voiced her admiration.

'Just look at the features—perfect!" Observing more closely, it dawned upon Aileen that the statue was Vivienne.

For a moment Aileen was stunned. Then her own admiration for the little masterpiece overcame the scruples that were inherent in her. A burst of applause aroused her. Vivienne and Dwight Channing were smiling their acknowledgment of what was a real ovation.

The orchestra struck up again.

Aileen caught sight of Jimmy. She called to him and he hastened to her.

"You havent danced with me once!" She chidded him as they moved off over the floor. "Have you been hiding or sitting them out with some girl in the garden?"

He evaded the answer. He could not tell her he had been off sulking in the corner. Perhaps she sensed his feeling, for the clasp of her hand grew tighter and she cuddled closer as she looked up at him.

Aileen, too, felt a growing restlessness. Something told her that this night was a turning point in her life. Was Jimmy slipping away from her? Was she to lose him completely? In a way, she realized that from now on she must belong to her public.

Over Jimmys shoulder, she could see Vivienne, once more surrounded by the liveliest group in the room.

"It's all wrong!" Frank Drummond was insisting. "Bruce promised we'd see the original and he hasn't produced her."

Perfly right!" Tom Quinn did his best to articulate. "S'all a fake, I don't believe it."

"Make him prove it!" Woodward joined the ranks of the half-soused skeptics. "Bruce, you've got to show us. I'll admit the features—but I won't believe—"

"Oh won't you!" Vivienne blew a haze of cigaret smoke at them. Hands on her hips, she turned slowly and cast them a look of amused contempt over her bare shoulder. "Go get a tape-measure if you like!"

"No go!" Drummond rejected that. "Won't believe you unless you demonstrate."

"That's the idea," Woodward urged. "Come on. Be a sport. I dare you!"

"Is that so! All right - I will!" Vivienne tossed her empty glass for one of them to catch.

"Come out to the fountain and I'll jump in. I've always wanted to!"

With her draperies trailing behind her, she darted across the room. In an instant the men were after her.

A hand caught at Vivienne's shoulder-knot and the film of her bodice fell over her hips like a cloud of spray. She paused, pulled off both [illegible] and laughingly hurled them at Bruce Burns as he [illegible] her. They caught him squarely in the face. His feet slid out from under him and he sprawled in the path of Woodward and Quinn who were just behind him.

Above the shout which greeted that, Vivienne heard Aileen's cry as she came running toward her.

"Viv! You shan't! Do you hear me!" She leaped over the squirming men in her path, her arms outstretched in appeal.

For the fraction of a instant, Vivienne hesitated. She'a never reach the fountain before Aileen could stop her. Oh, darn it all! Why did Aileen have to be a spoil-sport? Well, she wasn't going to four-flush after they had dared her!

Quick as a sprite, her hands sought both doors. With all her strength she swung them. They closed with a bang just as Aileen tripped—and crashed into the glass.
